Congress Moves For Legislation On Enforcement

Believed Both Houses Will Approve Law Changes Recommended by Hoover Commission—Doran May Head New Bureau In Charge of Alcohol and Narcotics.

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—A nation that read with intense interest the most sweeping proposal for drying up America that has been advanced in the decade since the Eighteenth Amendment became part of the Constitution, today directed its eyes to Capitol Hill as Congress moved to act upon the recommendations sponsored by President Hoover.

The consensus of the membership of the House and Senate was that there would be votes to spare in both chambers to provide the legislation urged by the chief executive who first a year and a half ago in accepting the nomination to his present office said he regarded prohibition as "a great social and economic experiment, noble in motive and far-reaching in purpose."

First action toward carrying out the enforcement reorganization program is looked for in the house. Speaker Longworth said today in assigning different phases of the program to six committees he had been prompted by a desire to expedite consideration.

He explained he found that the recommendations of the law enforcement commission and the phases covered in the message of transmittal by Mr. Hoover and the accompanying reports from Secretary Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell embodied subjects that could best be handled in this way.

"These six committees," said Mr. Longworth, "have a total membership of 130 members. Thus more than one-fourth of the House membership will immediately be interested directly in acting upon the presidential recommendations. If we had referred the proposals to a joint congressional committee, as once considered, perhaps not more than five or seven House members would have participated in the deliberations."

Further, Mr. Longworth said he expected one of the first steps to be the transmittal of specific legislative proposals from various governmental departments to provide for the suggested administrative changes. Before nightfall Chairman Williamson of the Expenditures Committee is expected to introduce a resolution to authorize the transfer of the prohibition unit from the Treasury to the Justice Department. This measure has been discussed with interested departmental officials.

Under Williamson's prospective measure, Commissioner Doran of the Prohibition Bureau would be retained in the Treasury Department as chief of a new bureau to handle industrial alcohol permits and narcotics.

Best Means of Expediting Action.

Representative Garner, Texas, the House Democratic leader, said today he believed Mr. Longworth had chosen the best means of expediting action, adding that the committees to which the speaker had referred the recommendations had been dealing with such questions in a different form since almost the day of the First Congress.

At the Senate side of the Capitol the first consideration of the proposed changes is expected Monday, when the Judiciary Committee, to which the recommendations were referred, will meet. Chairman Norris of this committee so far has reserved comment on the recommendations.

Briefly they propose:

A ban against the entry of all persons into the United States except at points of entry designated by the President.

The transfer of the prohibition enforcement unit now headed by Commissioner Doran under the Treasury Department to the Department of Justice.

Concentration under the Coast Guard of all border patrol activities.

Additional judges and more federal attorneys, marshals and clerks.

Revision of padlock injunction regulations to prevent concealing the ownership of property.

Greater prison facilities and reorganization and parole and other practices.

The definition of "casual and slight violations" as: Unlawful possession, single sales in small quantities, unlawful making in small quantities, and assisting in making and transportation as a casual employe. Such violations would carry a maximum fine of not more than $500 and imprisonment of not more than six months or both.

Further, state, county and municipal officers would be authorized to seize all liquor carrying vehicles and to proceed against their operators.

Among those whose comment on the law enforcement report was awaited with interest today was Senator Borah of Idaho, one of Mr. Hoover's most ardent campaigners, and more recently a severe critic of existing enforcement agencies. The present furore over prohibition received much impetus from the Christmas Eve statement of the senator that with the present enforcement personnel the law could not be enforced. Borah reiterated this morning he was withholding an announcement until he had time to read the lengthy report.

Approve Transfer Of Bus Line

Albany, Jan. 13.—The Public Service Commission today approved the transfer to Klemm & Huber, operating a bus line from Kingston north through Saugerties, Cementon, Alsen, and Catskill, of the certificate issued by the commission on May 6, 1926, under which George W. Smith has been operating a bus line between Catskill and Cementon.

Both bus lines operate over the same state highway. The transfer of the certificate, as approved today, will result in a through Kingston-Catskill line with no change in busses, and elimination of a duplication of bus service between Alsen and Cementon. Klemm & Huber will operate six busses.

Ulster County Society to Hold Annual Dinner

Will be Held at Hotel Astor in New York city—Fine Program Arranged—Many From Kingston and Ulster County Expected to Attend.

The annual dinner of the Ulster County Society in New York will be held at the Hotel Astor in New York city on Saturday evening, and the guest of honor will be Delancey N. Mathews of Kingston, who recently celebrated his eightieth birthday. Among the speakers of the evening will be former Mayor Palmer Canfield and Matt Henson, the first man to reach the North Pole, who will speak on Arctic exploring. Harry Armstrong, the famous composer of Sweet Adeline, will furnish the entertainment with his Sweet Adeliners.

Plans are now underway to make this annual affair one of the best ever held by the society. The honorary president, Willis G. Nash, vice president of the Irving Trust Company, who devotes half of his time to his business in New York and the rest of the time on his farm near Lomontville, will be present at the dinner.

Matt Henson, the first man to reach the North Pole, will have a story of interest to all. Henson went with Peary, and built the sledge and drove the dogs. On that famous trip Henson went ahead and Peary came on the second sledge. This occurred on April 6, 1909. Henson had been engaged for twenty-three years in exploring before he reached the Pole. He speaks the language of the Eskimos and is regarded as the most expert sledge maker and dog driver in the world. He is now employed as a messenger in the custom house in New York.

William Winter, chairman of the entertainment committee, has engaged Harry Armstrong to have personal supervision of the entertainment that evening. The Sweet Adeliners, a group of singers and musicians, will entertain throughout the evening. As an added attraction the committee has secured the services of Mr. Baker of Bay Ridge and Mr. Paxton, he of "the camera mind."

Those who have attended previous dinners held by the Ulster County Society know what to expect in the way of a good time. Before the serving of the dinner there will be the usual get-together meeting of those attending to talk over old times and renew old friendships.

No Date Set for Wells Inquest

No date has been set for the inquest before Coroner Humiston which District Attorney Traver has authorized to clear up the facts surrounding the automobile accident at Stone Ridge Saturday when Deputy Sheriff Peter W. Wells was fatally injured. The inquest will be held as soon as witnesses can be summoned. District Attorney Traver has turned that matter over to Assistant District Attorney Cleon B. Murray of Ellenville and it is probable that the inquest will be held the latter part of this week or early next week.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP).—Sixty-four cadets, including Alonzo Parham, negro, of Chicago, were honorably discharged from the United States Military Academy today because of failure to pass midterm academic examinations, Major General William R. Smith, superintendent, announced.

Examinations were held for 137 cadets who were deficient in one or more subjects, General Smith said. Forty-eight of those who failed to pass were members of the plebe or freshman class and the remainder were sophomores.

Republicans Seek Inquiry Into New York City Regime

Want Commission Named by Governor to Investigate Charges of Corruption—Rothstein Case and Pathe Film Studio Fire Mentioned.

Albany, Jan. 14 (AP).—A Republican legislature today had left on the doorstep of Governor Roosevelt an assignment to investigate "corruption in the various departments of the government of the city of New York".

The assignment came in the form of an announcement made last night by Majority Leader of the Senate John Knight and Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies. They said a bill would be introduced in the legislature to provide for a commission "named wholly by the governor" to investigate not only the administration of law by magistrates' courts but the Arnold Rothstein case and its alleged connection with the New York city police department. The scope of the bill, the leaders revealed, would be so inclusive as to include an investigation of the administration of fire department regulations with reference to the Pathe Film Studio fire and the resulting loss of life.

The announcement of the Republicans was viewed here today as a surprising and more than ample request by W. Kingsland Macy, Suffolk county Republican chairman, and the New York Young Republican Club for a legislative investigation into the administration of criminal laws of the state and of the magistrates' courts. The statement of the Republican leaders that they would ask the governor to name the whole commission "to show we seek no party advantage" was believed to make entirely possible the creation of an investigating body predominately or wholly non-legislative.

Comment of the announcement, both here and in New York city, was not immmediately forthcoming. The governor, told last night that he might have both the water power question and the investigation "dumped into his lap", replied that he had "a broad lap". In New York, Chief Magistrate William McAdoo and Police Commissioner Grover Whalen declined to discuss the proposed bill.

Enactment of law to provide for the investigation was deemed necessary by the Republican legislators because the provisions of the Moreland act did not embrace an inquiry of such broad proportions.

"The governor has been very eager to investigate alleged abuses in some of the upstate communities," said the leaders. "We propose to give him all the power necessary to investigate corruption in New York city."

They declared many requests had been received for appointment of a commission by the legislature to investigate the magistrates' courts in New York.

If the investigation is made, it is expected it will center about the charges that liaison exists among magistrates, politicians and gang leaders and will delve into the alleged fake holdup of a dinner to Magistrate Albert H. Vitale. Charges that Arnold Rothstein, slain mysteriously in November, 1928, had made money gifts to city officials also would be one of the subjects to be put under the scrutiny of the commission, under the terms of the measure.

SHOT AND KIDNAPPED THE DEPUTY SHERIFF.

Chandler, Ariz., Jan. 14 (AP).—Armed posses patrolled highways of three central Arizona counties today searching for a woman and two men who shot and kidnapped a deputy sheriff in Florence last night and wounded another deputy who attempted to stop their automobile near here.

The wounded officers, Joe Chapman of Florence and Lee Wright of Chandler, were taken to a hospital in Mesa, Ariz. Their condition was not known.

Pima, Pinal and Maricopa county officers were ordered to search for the kidnapppers' machine, which bore a 1930 Kentucky license.

The first alarm was received from Florence, four miles south of here, at 10 p. m., stating Chapman had been kidnapped by two men and a blonde woman, about 30 years old, whom he attempted to question concerning ownership of the automobile.

Wright and three other officers tried to stop the car, which they saw approaching at 11 o'clock, and its occupants began shooting. Wright was struck in the abdomen, Chapman, apparently previously wounded, was thrown from the machine.

Wright's companion gave chase to the kidnappers' automobile but it got away.

"DEAF MUTE" FORGOT AND SPOKE TOO SOON.

San Francisco, Jan. 14 (AP).—Any deaf mute who appears in the police court of Judge George J. Steiger should make it a point to remember that silence is golden. Ed Quinn forgot.

Quinn was tried for petty theft. Waving his hands expressively and thrusting a storm of pencilled notes at the judge, he won the court's sympathy, though not acquittal.

"He's guilty all right," remarked the judge to a bailiff, "but I dislike sending a deaf mute to jail."

"What was that about jail?" ejaculated Quinn.

"Thirty days," said the judge.

Calendar of 22 Civil and 43 Criminal Cases

County Court Adjourns Until First Cases are Ready Thursday Morning—Two Plead Not Guilty When Arraigned.

County court opened Monday afternoon with a calendar of 22 civil and 43 criminal cases. After the jurors were sworn and arraignments made, the session adjourned until the first cases are ready on Thursday morning. Judge Joseph M. Fowler is the presiding judge.

District Attorney Frederick G. Traver caused two arraignments of individuals indicted by the December grand jury. John Ritchie, alleged to have committed an assault in the second degree, pleaded not guilty through his attorney, N. LeVan Haver, and bond was continued until his case is disposed of. Peter Swart charged with violation of the penal code dealing with the non-support of his children, also pleaded not guilty. His bond was also continued.

Max Eagle of Lackawack, alleged to have threatened persons who had foreclosed a mortgage on his property, was represented in court by his attorney, Frank Brooks, who asked that the peace bond of $2,000 lodged against Eagle be discontinued. The plaintiffs contested the action, and the court continued the bond until the case was heard. Attorney Brooks then asked a hearing to be set a week from Wednesday or January 22. The request was granted.

Six cases were placed on the day calendar when court convenes Thursday. Case No. 5, Meyer Rosenthal against David Rosensweig, an action to recover for goods sold and delivered. Morris Kanfer represents the plaintiff and C. A. Hoornbeck, the defendant.

Case No. 6, Lemuel E. DuBois against Claude Rose, an action to recover for goods sold and delivered. Walter J. Miller is attorney for the plaintiff and N. LeVan Haver, the defendant.

Case No. 9, Joe Len against Morris Kirshenblum, an action on contract. Walter J. Miller represents the plaintiff and Andrew J. Cook, the defendant.

Case No. 13, George Sherman against Louis Basch, an action on contract. M. O. Auchmoody is attorney for the plaintiff and Arthur B. Ewig, the defendant.

Case No. 14, Lemuel DuBois against Carrie Personeus, an action on contract. The plaintiff is represented by Frank W. Brooks and the defendant by N. LeVan Haver.

Case No. 17, Olga Montere against Southard Beichert, an action to recover for personal injuries. George Garfunkel is attorney for the plaintiff and Ireland, Caverly and Hendrickson for the defendant.

The civil cases ready for trial this term of court are expected to be disposed of by the middle of next week. The criminal work will begin at that time.

The court excused the following men from jury duty during the term of court: Norman Eckert, William Elting, Vincent Havlin, Sr., Ira Maurer and Henry Miller.

U. S. Delegates Will Arrive in London Friday

S. S. George Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—With good sailing weather forecast and the seas moderating, the George Washington pushed eastward at increased speed today to bring the American naval delegation to Plymouth as early as possible Friday.

A train will be waiting at Plymouth to take the Americans directly to London, placing them in the British capital early Friday morning where the delegates may immediately throw themselves into the necessary work preliminary to the conference itself, which does not convene until next Tuesday.

Colonel Henry L. Stimson, American secretary of state and head of the delegation, recognizes that the earliest possible arrival probably will please Ramsay MacDonald, who as host of the conference will have many things to occupy his mind.

Colonel Stimson's program includes first a conference with Premier MacDonald, followed with conversations with Andre Tardieu, French premier, and Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister. It is believed he may make some effort to smooth out Franco-Italian differences, which admittedly may stand in the way of a five-power agreement on naval limitation.

It was believed the first meeting of Colonel Stimson and Mr. MacDonald would not be marked by any discussion of naval problems but would be devoted instead to the best methods procedure for the opening phases of the conference. Mr. Stimson is anxious particularly that the first sessions of the conference be not marred by any element which might cause irritation in any quarter, and he is expected to throw his influence to mutual examination of the field in a general way before any attempt is made to propose detailed programs.

It is in this spirit that he is withholding comment on the recent Franco-British Exchange, although he is reading official and private dispatches concerning that exchange of notes with considerable interest.

Introduce Bill To Investigate Water Power

Albany, Jan. 14 (AP).—Governor Roosevelt today held the water power matter in both hands—in one the Republican legislative bill to provide for a commission to investigate his and other proposals for development of the St. Lawrence; in the other an invitation by the state's largest power corporation to confer on the matter.

The introduction of a bill to provide for an investigating commission the first task of which would be to look into the practicability of the Governor's plan for state development of the St. Lawrence power resources added complication to a situation brought about by the invitation of the Niagara-Hudson Power Corporation for a public conference on the development and the Governor's reluctance to immediately reply.

Democrats in the Legislature greeted introduction of the bill with glee, interpreting it as an admission that "our Governor was right" in his water power policy, a manifestation bringing from the Republican side of the Legislature a "hope" that Governor Roosevelt would receive the bill "in the same spirit" indicated by Democratic legislative leaders.

Senator Downing declared it was upon the water power issue that former Governor Smith was elected in 1922, 1924 and 1926, and that the same issue was responsible for the election of Governor Roosevelt.

Senator John Knight, majority leader of the upper house, and Speaker Joseph A. McGinnies of the Assembly declared, in a statement, the bill was ready for introduction six weeks ago, but that it had been withheld from legislative action or public attention "because the Republican leaders of the Legislature understood that an agreement in regard to this matter had been reached at a conference called by the Governor with legislative leaders and several representatives of utilities." The Governor recently conferred with representatives of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan, active in affairs of the Niagara-Hudson, and on several occasions has informally talked with Mr. Carlisle.

"If the commission should determine after a careful inquiry," the leaders said, "that the governor's proposal is feasible, it must so report to the legislature and submit a comprehensive plan." The proposal proffered by the governor is that the state build, own and operate, through a board of trustees, a hydro-electric plant on the St. Lawrence, and that if found necessary the state build its own transmission line for distribution of power to central and southern New York cities.

In a message to the legislature last night, the governor recommended to the legislature the creation of a commission to study the plan for a St. Lawrence river bridge connecting New York and Ontario, the bridge to be built and operated jointly with Ontario as a public enterprise.

The governor vetoed two St. Lawrence bridge bills last session on the ground that they were of private or semi-private nature and were contrary to a policy of the state against the granting of private franchises to corporations to build toll bridges.

SECOND DEATH IN TOLEDO FROM PARROT DISEASE

Toledo, Jan. 14 (AP).—Miss Catherine Tierney, 67, housekeeper at the Good Shepherd Church pastoral residence, who died in a hospital here yesterday is believed to be Toledo's second victim of psittacosis, the parrot disease.

Miss Tierney is believed to have contracted the disease from a parrot which the Rev. eGorge A. Branigan of the church, brought back with him from South America in December.

The parrot died about 12 days ago and shortly after, Miss Tierney complained of pains. The pains were followed by the general symptoms of pneumonia and on January 9 she was taken to a hospital.

Dr. H. G. Pamment, acting city health commissioner is investigating three new suspected cases, reported to him yesterday.

FOR GRADUAL REDUCTION OF WORKING HOURS

St. Petersburg, Fla., Jan. 14 (AP).—Having decided upon immediate consideration of a plan for gradual reduction of working hours because of its relationship to the unemployment situation members of the Executive Council of the American Federation of Labor today turned to a discussion of injunction and convict labor legislation and the child labor problems.

William Green, president of the council, has declared that a universal eight-hour day would lessen the burden of men working ten or more hours daily and would, at the same time, permit some of those who do not have positions to obtain employment by working the extra hours.

Evidently Carrigan did not think that Judge Culloton kept his promises for Monday afternoon Carrigan was arrested for panhandling on Broadway. This morning Judge Culloton sent him to jail for five days.

To the Honorable Board of Police Commissioners of the City of Kingston, New York.

Gentlemen:

In compliance with my duties, I herewith submit for your consideration and approval the 38th annual report of the work accomplished by the police department for the year ending December 31, 1929. While the report is largely devoted to tables of statistics, an endeavor has been made to render a detailed account of the operations of the police department during the year past.

On April 27, the department moved from the Municipal Building to the new quarters provided for it in the city hall. The space provided is adequate for our present needs. We feel the lack of suitable steel lockers for each policeman, steel shelving for the storage rooms and a curtain for the shower bath. It is recommended that this equipment be purchased and installed.

The personnel of the department has been kept up to a high standard. Six new patrolmen were added to the force in July. This was necessary in order to comply with a state law which was passed in March, granting policemen one day of rest in seven. The addition of six patrolmen did not increase the active strength of the force greatly as they are used as relief men six days a week. The full strength of the force is in operation on Saturday only; the extra men being utilized to take care of traffic in the principal business districts. Thus the augmented force has proven its value.

The men of the department have shown a keen interest in their work throughout the year. They have been unusually attentive to their duties and there exists among them a spirit of loyalty which is commendable. They are endeavoring to maintain the high type of police service the people of Kingston expect of them and it is their ambition, as a whole, to succeed.

Police Training.

The Kingston Municipal Zone Police Training School established in December, 1928, was largely attended and a success in every respect. The results obtained were entirely satisfactory to the Mayors' Conference which sponsored it. Fifty-two police officers from the city and nearby villages attended and received certificates of attendance. The en-

Four Killed When Robbers Dynamite Coal Pay Car

Two Others Injured—Heroism of One of the Injured Men Saves $32,000 In Pay Chest—Organized Search For the Dynamiters.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Jan. 14 (AP).—Four men were dead today, victims of would-be robbers who yesterday dynamited a pay car of the Glen Alden Coal Company. Two others were injured, one critically.

Approximately $32,000 of the $35,000 the bandits were seeking was saved by the heroism of one of the injured men. An organized search for the dynamiters was started at once, but no trace of them had been found today.

The explosion occurred about a mile from Nanticoke in a wild, mountainous section near the coal company's Truesdale Colliery, one of the largest in the anthracite region.

The car was being hauled up a narrow gauge railroad by a mine motor to pay off several hundred miners working at No. 20 tunnel. As it neared the colliery, the dynamite, which had been placed under the track, was exploded by means of wires and a battery hidden behind a barricade 200 feet away, wrecking the car.

Arthur W. Webb, 32, of Scranton, paymaster in charge of the car; Frank Bimski, 40, a miner of Plymouth, and Martin Burns, 31, section foreman, Warrior Run, were killed almost instantly. James Shovlin, 32, a section foreman, Sugar Notch, a cousin to Burns, died a few hours later.

Fred E. Pfaff, 50, Scranton, a guard on the car, suffered crushed feet and internal injuries. His condition was reported as critical.

The payroll was saved by John Sookil, 50, a miner of Plymouth, who was only slightly injured by the blast. Although dazed, Sookil managed to gain his feet and stood over the iron bound pay chest.

One of the bandits approached. Striking a menacing attitude Sookil warned the robber not to touch the money and the bandit fled without offering attack. Officials who later examined the pay chest found most of its contents intact, and believed the missing money went up in the explosion.

Merchants Will Hold Cooperative Sale January 22

Members of the Kingston Uptown Merchants' Association will hold a cooperative sale for one day, Wednesday, January 22. The matter of holding a winter "Clean-Up Sale" was discussed at a recent meeting of the members of the association and the date and length of the sale was left up to a committee. Monday a meeting of the committee was held and at that time it was decided to hold a one day sale next Wednesday.

At that time the merchants in all lines of business will offer merchandise at greatly reduced prices in order to clear their shelves for the new spring stocks, which will be arriving shortly. A backward season, which has presented little in the form of winter weather thus far, has left the merchants with a wonderful assortment of all kinds of winter merchandise. This stock must be moved now to make room for the spring goods.

Concentrating their efforts on a one day cooperative sale there is every indication that the uptown merchants will have something of real merit to offer to the public and that the public will take advantage of the opportunity.

The stores will remain open during the usual hours and will not be open in the evening.

AGED EPISCOPAL BISHOP INJURED BY AUTOMOBILE.

Boston, Jan. 14 (AP).—The Right Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Babcock, 79-year-old Suffragan Bishop of the Massachusetts diocese of the Episcopal Church, was in a critical condition today with injuries sustained last night when struck by an automobile. His name was on the danger list at the City Hospital.

Dr. Thompson at The Monday Club

On Monday afternoon the Monday Club met at the home of Mrs. C. N. Reed on Crown street. Announcement was made of the date of the Federation luncheon, which will be February first and will take the place of the open meeting which usually occurs about that time. Place of the luncheon and other matters connected therewith will be announced later. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. De La Vergne when Miss Munn will have the paper on "The Vogue of the Mystery Story."

The president, Mrs. William Lawton, introduced the speaker of the afternoon, Effie Freeman Thompson, Ph. D., a former Kingston woman, who had so kindly consented to speak to the club members on "The Use of figurative Language in Early Hebrew Literature."

Dr. Thompson said that though she had been privileged to address different State Federation audiences it was the first time that she had had the pleasure of addressing a group of Kingston women who through their own club were members of the local Federation. The speaker began her talk, which was entirely without notes, by showing the use of figurative language in the fables of early Hebrew days; then in riddles and again in parables. Personifications were depicted in figurative language as were names and numbers and the length of time. Under each subject Dr. Thompson illustrated with interesting quotations. She showed the use of figurative language in dreams, in a description of old age, and even gave one "moving picture."

One very interesting phase of the subject was that showing the Old Testament's first description of God as a "God of Battle," then, through development, in the book of Amos as a "God of Justice" and of the whole world, while in Hosea He has become the "Loving Father" and finally in Isaiah the conception of God has grown into a dawning appreciation of His holiness. In closing Dr. Thompson made it very clear that the Hebrew people objectified their inward exeriences again and again and in so doing expressed themselves figuratively, but with splendid faith.

FOODS BENEFICIAL TO SOME, ACT AS POISONS TO OTHERS

Specialist Gives Warning to Mothers Who Force Children to Eat Certain Things.

New York.—The mother who insists, "You must eat that; it's good for you!" may be unwittingly doing her child an injury.

Foods which may be beneficial to 99 persons in 100, may be positive poison to the one hundredth. Even such universal items of diet as milk, eggs, and potatoes should not be given to some children.

This is the warning voiced by Dr. Josephine H. Kenyon, widely known child health specialist, in the Good Housekeeping Magazine, where she discusses recent findings of science in regard to allergy, or the hyper-sensitization of certain individuals to particular substances with which they come into contact.

The most common form of allergy is a hyper-sensitiveness to substances breathed into the lungs, known popularly as hay fever, but parallel conditions can be brought about by taking in certain foods. Such conditions are usually evident in early childhood, says the child specialist, but they can affect the individual throughout life.

"Food allergies form a difficult study," says Doctor Kenyon. "The usual symptoms are skin rashes of many types, including eczema; indigestion symptoms varying from loss of appetite to vomiting and diarrhea; and such varied reactions as apathy, prostration, and fever. Often the correct diagnosis is not made until there have been many attempts to cure the child by cathartics, drugs, salves, etc.

"Occasionally, however, we are fortunate enough to see the same symptoms recur coincident to the giving of certain foods, so can draw conclusions. The fact that a child may be mildly sensitive to each of several foods, and not react until they are given in combination, adds to the difficulty of diagnosis."

The most effective method for treatment of such conditions, says the Good Housekeeping expert, is a process which eliminates all suspected foods, reintroducing them to the diet one at a time under the guidance of a dietician. She outlines the findings of Doctors Dale and Thornburg, specialists, who have made a comprehensive study of the problem:

"They feel that the foods which have been found to cause trouble most often should be omitted, such as milk, wheat, eggs, potatoes, chocolate, oranges, tomatoes and other vegetables. This leaves a rather limited choice. They suggest that their exact diets be followed from five to seven days, then one new food at a time be added and the symptoms watched. They state that the only foods which have never been proved to cause this type of trouble are salt, sugar, and gelatin."

England Makes Currency for Other Countries

London.—Making money for other countries is a regular business of the British government.

Not only the British colonies, but Rumania, Estonia, Czechoslovakia, Finland, and even Soviet Russia have their currency made in England. The royal mint also gives many countries advice on coinage.

Many of the orders received by the mints are not easy to execute. Egypt recently placed a large order for gold coins which, though larger than the earlier Egyptian currency, had to resemble it in other respects. Much research was necessary to obtain the peculiar greenish tinge of the old coins instead of the faintly reddish hue of the British gold coinage.

When the Spanish mint was reorganized, a commission came from Madrid to study the British mint, and the new machinery was made in Britain.

Gets $250,000 Bag by Mistake, Finds Owner

New York.—Oscar H. Strobel, Jr., Texas cowboy and artist, on his way to Berlin to study art on a scholarship, stepped off a train at Grand Central terminal and his luggage was bundled in a taxi after him.

The car stopped before the Hotel Governor Clinton. "I'll look after your luggage," a doorman told him.

Strobel was shown to a room. He had just doffed his overcoat when the luggage arrived. He opened one bag and found it full of gold backed stocks and bonds, worth $250,000.

Strobel phoned Gordon Renschler of the National City bank, and he identified the bonds by their serial number. They belonged to Frederick Appel of Indianapolis. The bank located Appel and he hurried to Strobel's hotel, where he identified the bag and recovered the bonds.

Observation Car Is Suspended From Airship

Washington.—An observation control car for dirigibles which can be suspended in the air hundreds of feet below the flying airship has been developed by the army corps, it has been announced by the War department. The use of such a car permits the dirigible to fly in or above the clouds, where it is hidden from the ground, while the observer in the car directs the airship's flight.

A long cable is used to lower or raise the observation car.

A telephone wire built into the cable permits voice communication between the observer and the ship.

carry on—Avoid that future shadow

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

"Coming events cast their shadows before"

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette you ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

"It's toasted"

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

In Memoriam.

In loving memory of my beloved husband, John H. Schultz, who passed away three years ago today, January 14, 1927.

There's someone who misses you sadly,
And finds the long years since you went.
There's someone who thinks of you daily,
But tries to be brave and content;
So we shed a tear that is silent,
And breathe a sigh of regret,
For you were ours, we remember,
And all the world should forget.

INSURANCE AND SPEAKEASIES.

It is interesting to learn that when an insurance company refused to pay the death benefits of a Detroit man who was shot in a speakeasy, on the ground that he had assumed an undue risk in entering such an unlawful establishment, the judge ruled for the dependents claiming the insurance, and made the following notable statement:

Prohibition in law is not prohibition in fact. Liquor is served not only in "blind pigs" and similar establishments, but also in almost every sort of place in which human beings foregather in the large cities of the country, with the exception, possibly, of religious edifices, courtrooms, cemeteries, school rooms, prisons and W. C. T. U. headquarters. It is true that "blind pigs" are occasionally disturbed by gunmen; so are clergymen, policemen and judges. If the contention (of undue peril) were sound, the widow would also have lost her insurance had her husband chanced to have been shot while attending a debutante's party, a football game, a banquet of Senators, the private office of a stock broker, the average kitchenette or cloakroom.

This judge ruled according to conditions as they are in fact rather than as they are in theory, and his intimation that liquor at a debutante's party or at a banquet of Senators is notorious can not be disulssed as beside the point. Incidentally it may be observed that no more convincing statement than his on the difference between prohibition in theory and in fact has yet found its way into print. The speakeasy is unlawful, but is too common to be regarded as an unusual feature in American life involving risk that frees an insurance company from its obligations.

MERCY TO THE ELECTROCUTED.

A bill has been introduced in the Massachusetts legislature providing that persons about to be electrocuted shall be given a narcotic to fortify them in the last ordeal. It is stated that the warden of Charlestown State Prison opposes the measure, being convinced that such legislation is undesirable, and that he claims that all men he has seen electrocuted were able to keep their courage to the last. The chaplain of the same prison also opposes the bill on the ground that the "soul going to meet its Maker should not have its faculties obscured" by a dose administered as a palliative. But it appears that the author of the bill does not propose going as far as this would imply. He wants to "lessen the barbarism of the death penalty without impairing its effectiveness, even as a deterrent to crime" and is thus quoted: "The condemned person should not be drugged into stupor, but his nerves should be strengthened, the shock lessened. Capital punishment is a necessary evil, but the infliction of pain is no part of its intent."

Perhaps many will think that both the proponent and the opponents are theoretically right, that the condemned man should go to his death in the full possession of his faculties, or with his eyes open, but that to give him something to strengthen or steel his nerves would be an act of mercy and do no harm. The discussion is of general interest because other states are likely to be called on to consider the matter if the Massachusetts bill should pass either in its present or in modified form.

CHEAP LIGHT.

An electric lamp of 100 watt power, burned for 1,000 hours, would bring to the average consumer in this country an electricity bill of something like $7.00. If he turned to the method of the good old days and sought the same amount of illumination by means of candles, his bill would be nearer $1,500. Dr. H. E. Howe, editor of Industrial and Engineering Chemistry, cites these facts in suggesting that a lot of us don't know how well off we are when we pay our monthly illuminating bills. Many things have contributed to the low cost of lighting. The improvement of the bulbs, which is still going on, is one factor. Efficiency in the generation and distribution of electric current is another.

Our ancestors who used candles in their homes didn't spend any such vast sums every 1,000 hours as the $1,500 mentioned, for the simple reason that they didn't attempt to have so much artificial light. Many things may be said to be cheaper for us than for them, but our cost of living is greater because we want greater quantity and better quality. Not very many current admirers of the good old days would consent to go back to them in their daily living. Candles for decorations are lovely, but we don't put them on the bridge table until the refreshments come in.

The world is interested in the report that a granddaughter of Napoleon Bonaparte, a retired school teacher, is living in a cottage in a Paris suburb. Her father, according to the story, was Count Leon, son of Napoleon and a lady of his court, to whom he gave half his name. It had not been suspected that there was anyone left in the great Corsican's direct line of descent. No less interesting is the fact that this woman's only son was killed at Rheims fighting for France in 1917. It seems fitting somehow, and in keeping with the tragical spirit of history, that the last issue of the great war-maker should be cut off in the greatest of wars.

An Oklahoma woman has left $600,000 to Cincinnati, the city of her girlhood, with the stipulation that not a penny of the bequest be spent before the year 2430. The compound interest sharks announce that the sum will grow to $149,245,132,800 in those 500 years. That certainly gives Cincinnati an incentive for continuing to exist. But contemporary citizens should not pile up too many bills for posterity to pay with its incredible fortune later on. Something might happen in the next five centuries to render that sum, if it is ever amassed, less of a blessing than a curse.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

VALUE OF A GOOD SWEAT.

A number of years ago in lecturing to school teachers about baths and bathing, I tried to point out the importance of the skin to the organism. That the idea that the skin was a sort of bag holding the body together, just a sort of covering, was wrong, that the skin was really as delicately organized as perhaps any other organ. That as a matter of fact it threw on about a quarter of all the waste from the body.

Further, that if the skin was not functioning well it put the work on the organs, kidneys, lungs, and intestines.

A little later, the idea of the skin getting rid of much waste was further outlined, and its main use was thought to be to get rid of the waste heat from the body.

However at the latest Physiological Congress at Boston, Mass., it was shown that when the skin was subjected to dry heat, as much as four quarts of more of perspiration only, and a long period of time could be produced.

Now the chief waste in the perspiration is the same as that in the urine.

If too much of this waste is retained in the blood then the kidneys suffer and what is known as uremic poisons disease may follow.

It had been shown that the application of dry heat to the skin to induce excessive perspiration can remove one ninetieth of this waste in the blood to an extremely low point—lower than any other method.

The symptoms caused by this waste in the blood are thus relieved.

It has been shown that where there is swelling of tissues due to water in the system—such as dropsy—that dry heat by inducing this perspiration, reduces the symptoms better than any other method.

Where there is a heart ailment, or very severe symptoms, only brief sweating is attempted.

The point then is, that the old idea that skin that is made to perspire can relieve the kidneys by throwing off waste heat, thus relieving the ulcerior of the body, but throws on wastes also.

However, it is the activity perspiring skin that does that.

You and I can thus help the circulation of the blood, the removal of heat and waste, by simply working or exercising hard enough to induce a good sweat.

A QUESTION of HONOR

by Ruth Cross

SYNOPSIS: A determination to pierce the armor of his indifference to her charms takes Anne Wilmot to Scott Glenn's mountain cabin. She seeks sanctuary within from a thunderstorm and is found there by the young engineer. Anne employs all her artifices to disarm Glenn and gains his confidence. As she repents of her unworthy purpose to humble him, she is startled by his sudden coldness as though he divined her purpose. He escorts her back toward the lodge at a telling pace only to find the trail washed out with a wide gulley blocking their progress.

Chapter 14

MORSE LAYS A PLOT

BRETTON'S office at the railroad construction camp was a hastily erected shack not unlike Glenn's. There during the height of the storm whose fury had left its mark upon the mountain valleys, Morse, Douglas and Bretton discussed the obstacle that Glenn's dam project presented.

They were seated about a table covered with blueprints, so intent upon the lines that Bretton traced that they gave no thought to the storm. Morse switched on the table light. They raised their voices a trifle and went on arguing.

At last the engineer threw down the papers and shoved back from the table. "This thing's got to be decided one way or another," he said crisply, "and that d——d quick, or you can have my resignation. I don't like to draw my pay for nothing, and that's what I've been doing now for close on three weeks."

"There will be no bridge—that's final," Morse told Bretton.

Morse smiled slightly. "You shouldn't object to that if we don't."

"Well, I do," Bretton snapped out impatiently, his mouth looking more than ever like a steel trap. "My time's valuable—is more than mere money considerations—and I detest loafing on a job. Now, once and for all, am I to draw up plans for this bridge or shall I calculate on elevating the track for—let us say 50 or 75 miles back?"

"Why, neither I should say—just yet," Morse returned calmly.

Bretton scraped his chair back raspingly and rose. "Well, it's no good my wasting any more time here then," he said, "and—if you still have hopes of persuading the irrigation company to pull up stakes and leave after all Douglas' legal chicanery has failed — well, you don't understand what you're up against, that's all!" He shrugged intolerantly, went over to the window and set up an irritated tattoo against the pane. "By George," he added, surprised, "I had no idea they were giving us a regular cloudburst outside!"

Morse glanced carelessly at the opaque windows, then back at Douglas who sat opposite. The lawyer jerked his head meaningly towards Bretton, and leaned a little nearer to his employer. "He's going down to San Francisco the latter part of next week to buy some machinery and supplies. I think we won't take any steps until then. He'll be out of the way, and—it will look better from every standpoint."

The other man nodded. There was a moment's silence, then he asked — guardedly —, "Have you made the arrangement with Burkhalter's Mexican—what's his name, Tony?"

"Yes. He has worked on the job there at the reservoir and knows every location. A hundred dollars sounds like an immense fortune to him—his eyes got as big as mill wheels——"

Abruptly Morse raised his voice so that it would carry to the man at the window, "I'm going to ask you [illegible]—let us say," he glanced [illegible] at Douglas, who held up the fingers of both hands, "10 days. I don't like to decide important matters with undue haste."

The engineer wheeled about exasperatedly. "Ten days? Great Scott! How do you expect me to keep that crew down there at the camp employed 10 days longer? It's taxed all my powers of invention and fictioneering to keep the idle scamps out of trouble this long."

"That, of course, is your problem," Morse observed indifferently.

Bretton grunted enigmatically, strode back to the table and began shuffling the papers together. "It's not going to be my problem much longer," he said bluntly. "If you can't come to a decision one way or the other, I'm just about through. And I'll tell you again you might just as well be running your heads against that concrete wall down there at the reservoir as trying to argue this man, Glenn, off his job. I've heard about him before and about his work, and I know it can't be done!"

"My dear Bretton," Douglas interposed, rather hurriedly, "we don't intend to lift a finger. We mean merely to let matters take their natural course."

The engineer raised his head and looked at the lawyer sharply. "Their natural course?" he repeated questioningly.

A loud buzzing of the telephone on the desk obviated the necessity of a reply. Douglas walked over and picked up the receiver. He turned to Morse with a curious smile on his lips.

"It's Jarvis. He wants to know whether Miss Wilmot is here with us. It seems they haven't laid eyes on her since before the storm began."

Morse frowned, bit his lips and glanced uneasily toward the window. The rain was still falling in torrents, though the thunder and lightning had ceased. He strode quickly to the telephone and took the receiver from Douglas. "Yes, yes—hello—you say she went out immediately after lunch—alone? Yes, yes—have William bring the car here at once—tell him to bring some mackintoshes, boots, etc. You'd better come along too. Yes—good-bye."

He slammed the receiver down on the hook, and turned quickly, his face distorted with annoyance and worry. "I'm afraid I'll have to ask you to go with me," he said to Douglas, "it seems Miss Wilmot may be out in this storm——"

Fifteen minutes later, Douglas was shaking himself down into one of the mackintoshes which Jarvis had brought—preparatory to following Morse in a dash for the automobile. "It's hard to tell which gives him more trouble," he confided to Bretton with a smiling glance in the direction of the railroad magnate, who was already climbing into the machine, "the railroad or that Wilmot girl!"

Bretton grunted something enigmatic and at the same time disgusted. He was keenly disappointed in this untoward ending to a conference from which he had hoped some definite results. "Any man's a fool," he said curtly, "who tries to mix railroads and women. They've got to be taken singly, if at all. What the deuce did he bring her out here for anyhow?"

"Ask him!" The lawyer shrugged as if to say that it had certainly been none of his doing. Then he threw open the door, ducked his head and plunged out into the rain.

But the class was equal to the occasion, until he asked one little girl whether she would prefer a sixth of a seventh of an orange.

"A seventh," she declared.

"Ridiculous!" growled the inspector. "Don't you know that ——".

"Yes," interrupted the child, "But I don't like oranges."

"Yes," said the novice, condescending, "I'm going back tomorrow and try the second hole."

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

New York—John W. MacKay, son of the head of the Postal Telegraph and grandson of the founder, is learning to operate automatic telegraphing machines. With 150 others he is taking a three months' course in the company's school. Students are paid $15 a week.

New York—June Blossom, a debutante who is generally regarded to be as pretty as her name, is original. At a society dance she wore long gloves of an apple green hue.

Washington—General Jan Christian Smuts has a five-volume set of 400 plates of American wild flowers painted in natural colors. The gift, made possible by John A. Roebling of Trenton, N. J., was presented at the Smithsonian Institution.

New York—Robert M. Davis is starting on a trip for Uncle Sam with a railroad ticket seven feet long. He is collecting manufacturing statistics and will visit 35 cities, traveling 13,500 miles over 17 railroads on the one ticket.

Reno—Mrs. Everett W. Little, who has obtained a divorce, averred that her husband had done nothing but loaf since prohibition put him out of business; he once had the North American agency for a branch of champagne.

New York—Mrs. Katherine Smith, 63, is a cook 5 feet 2 and 560 pounds. It took ten policemen to get her to an ambulance from a boarding school when she required hospital treatment for illness.

Scituate, R. I.—The town poorhouse has no further reason for existence. The last inmate, Miss Ellen Pierce, the only one for several years, has died.

Camden, N. J.—Comley Richie of Moorestown, N. J., is glad he didn't bother to remove his overcoat when he boarded a train. A bullet crashed through the car window and interrupted his reading of a paper. The bullet was found imbedded in his coat. Who fired it is a mystery.

Berlin—Oscar Strauss, composer of "The Chocolate Soldier" and other operettas, is going to Hollywood. He will provide material for sound film, of course.

And They Got the Point

A negro evangelist was preaching concerning the horrors of hell. In front of him was a coffin piled high with flowers. Newspapers had announced that it was to be the funeral of a neighbor. There was no word of praise from the preacher's mouth. "Breth'en an' sistuhs," he shouted, "ouah deceased friend heah done committed ev'y sin in de catalog. He wasn't ready when de trumpet of de angel called him. He was unprepa'ed. He was wicked an' had to face judgment in his wickedness." At the end of the sermon every member of the congregation was eager to crowd forward and view the "remains." Solemnly they filed past the coffin. It was empty but in the bottom was a mirror that reflected the face of every "mourner" that looked in. The lesson went home.—Capper's Weekly.

Chinese Delicacy

Chop suey originated at a dinner that Prince Li Hung Chang gave in New York when he made his trip around the world. Prince Li carried his own chef with him, and the menu was strictly Chinese. One of the dishes especially delighted the wife of the guest of honor, and she asked Li what it was. Prince Li called in his chef, and the chef replied in Chinese, "It is a creation of my own—a chop suey." The words "chop suey" mean a mixture, or hash. Prince Li said in English, "It is a chop suey." The American woman spread the news of chop suey, the wonderful dish. The name was taken up by the Chinese restaurants in America, and today chop suey is the chief concoction that they serve.

Helpful

The widow of a farmer was being consoled by a neighboring farmer, who happened to be a widower.

"Cheer up, woman," he said. "Ye're young yet, and good looking, an' you could soon get another husband."

"Oh, no, no," she replied, "who would take me?"

"Why, if I had a better pair of boots on I'd run away wi' ye myself," said the widower, gallantly.

The widow, lifting her face and wiping her eyes, said, earnestly: "I wonder would John's fit you?"—England Birmingham Weekly Post.

Early Diving Suit

The diving suit is not so new as one might think. A patent was granted to John Stapleton on March 17, 1693, for "a new engine so by him contrived as to permit a person enclosed in it to walk under water, and to a new invented way to force air into any depth of water to supply the person in the said engine therewith and for continuing a lamp burning under water; also a way to descerate and purify the air so as to make the same serviceable for respiration."

Card of Thanks.

We wish to thank our kind friends and neighbors for their acts of loving sympathy during our recent loss of husband and father, and also extend grateful thanks for the beautiful floral tributes to our loved one.

There Were 995 Arrests Last Year

tire local department attended throughout the course and completed it.

During the year the Mayors' Conference decided to increase its activity in relation to police training schools. An advisory board was appointed, consisting of various chiefs of police throughout the state, to act in concert with them and the faculty of the New York State Training School for Police. The result of this movement was the establishment of a school for instruction at Poughkeepsie. Sergeant Charles Phinney and Sergeant James Simpson were appointed by your honorable body to attend this school. They have finished the course of study and will instruct the Kingston school this year. Police training has shown definite results in that it not only brings to the policemen new views of police work, but gives them the opportunity to refresh their minds with existing laws and ordinances, to learn new methods of police procedure and to receive instructions and advice about their work. Our 1930 school started January 3rd with an attendance of sixty-one. There is every indication that the school will again be a success.

The following subjects will be taught:

Civics and Laws of Arrest.

Contact with public-patrol; street conditions; fires.

Crime Classification.

Juveniles, vagrancy—Search warrants.

Firearm Instructions—Emergency first aid.

Traffic.

Investigations—Homicide.

Observation—Evidence, Court Procedure.

Methods of thieves—Larceny.

Assault—Mental defectives and crime.

Marksmanship.

During the year an effort was made to improve the marksmanship of the department. Instruction in the use of firearms was given during September, October and November. The use of an outdoor range was provided through the courtesy of James F. Dwyer. At the close of the training period two pistol experts from the Colt Firearms Mfg. Co., visited Kingston upon my invitation and gave final instructions and practice. They complimented the men very highly on their proficiency in the use of the pistol.

Motor Equipment.

The renewal of the police service car represents the only new motor equipment purchased by the department during the year. This and the police patrol car and ambulance are in good serviceable condition.

The motor cycles, however, after two years of almost constant service, have reached a stage when it is good business policy to renew them. An estimate of the cost of renewal has been submitted with a proposal to renew the machines yearly for a much smaller sum. To renew the machines yearly would be more economical. Police motorcycles must be kept in the very best of condition at all times and by renewing them yearly benefit of the latest improvements would be forthcoming.

The mileage of the various motor vehicles was, police patrol car, 23,133 miles; police service car, Franklin, 5,239 miles; Buick, 6,603 miles; ambulance, 1,447 miles and motor cycles 11,138 miles.

Police Signal System

The police signal system is in good serviceable condition and has been of great assistance to the department during the year past. Besides furnishing a means of communication and reporting for the officers on post, it enables headquarters to establish quick contact with officers on their posts.

An arrangement with the New York Telephone Company has speeded up emergency telephone communication with neighboring cities and villages. Three calling schedules have been established, each schedule indicating consecutively the police department with which communication is desired.

Schedule A calls for police departments within a radius of thirty miles. Schedule B within a radius of sixty miles and Schedule C those within a larger radius.

In sending out an alarm, central is requested to use the schedule desired and the stations are connected one after the other. The plan has given most satisfactory results during the year past.

Traffic

Automobile traffic over our main streets is increasing each year. The police, up to the present time, have been able to prevent congestion, reduce tendency to drive recklessly and enforce most of the laws pertaining to the use of the automobile. There were occasions during the year when the entire force was required for traffic duty. Ordinary week-end and holiday traffic demanded additional police management. Saturday traffic in our business sections requires the services of twelve policemen. A few years ago three or four policemen were able to render all the services required at that time. We have no organized traffic department and it is recommended that the force be increased ten men, in order that traffic might be supervised adequately.

Traffic signals, which are purchased and controled by the board of public works, have been placed at most necessary points. I agree with their policy of not congesting traffic with unnecessary traffic signals, besides they are expensive. Those installed during the past year have been placed at the most necessary and most advantageous points. They have given satisfaction and excellent service.

Police Pension Fund

The Police Pension Fund as it appears on the books of the City Treasurer is in good financial condition, with the assistance of the money donated by the Kingston Patrolmen's Association from receipts of the Police Ball, the fund is gaining.

The following tabulation shows the condition of the fund:

Balance on hand January 1, 1929	$20,252.04
Receipts during the year 1929	6,778.76
Int. Jan. 1, 1929 to Jan. 1, 1930	974.12
	$28,004.92
Less disbursements in 1929	5,050.00
Balance on hand Dec. 31, 1929	$22,954.92

Funds are deposited as follows:

Kingston Savings Bank	$5,872.39
Kingston Trust Co., Branch, Special	2,445.94
Kingston Trust Co., Branch	1,703.13
Ulster County Savings Institution	6,560.38
Rondout Savings Bank	5,929.00
Rondout National Bank	494.08
	$23,004.92
Less outstanding warrants	50.00
	$22,954.92

There was a deficit in the Police Fund for the year ending December 31, 1929, by reason of the appointment of six policemen to comply with the State Law in providing one day of rest in seven.

The following tabulated record shows the condition of the fund:

Unexpended Revenue, January 1, 1929, brought forward from previous year	$ 5,560.41
Budget Appropriation for year 1929	71,122.77
Total amount available to meet expenditure for the year 1929	$76,683.18
Disbursements, including salaries, garage, telephone, equipment, stationery, light and power, transportation of prisoners, office expenses, physicians' and surgeons' fees, repairs and renewal of equipment, maintenance of motor vehicles, supplies and other police expenses of the year	$80,643.56
Deficit	$ 3,960.37

During the year there has been received for sundry licenses $1,184.00. For dog licenses (collected by the city clerk) $1,533.00. For dog census (made by the Police Department) $323.60. For Junk licenses $100.00. Receipts from Police Ball of 1928 $2,021.59. Gift from the Kingston Trust Company $250.00. All of which was credited to the Police Pension Fund.

The number of arrests for all causes was 995. The number of women arrested was 53. Tabulated forms annexed hereto show the causes of arrest, disposition and other interesting information.

193 vehicular accidents in which persons were injured were reported. 2 persons were killed. The record does not include a large number of automobile collisions, in which property was damaged, of which a report is not compulsory. The record for the year 1928 shows 216 injured and 4 killed.

In conclusion I desire to express my thanks to the various City Departments for their uniform courtesy and assistance during the year. To this Board I assure my profound appreciation of the confidence that you have so generously accorded me.

Respectfully submitted,

J. ALLAN WOOD,
Chief of Police.

City of Kingston, N. Y., January 14, 1930.

"UNCLE SAM AT YOUR SERVICE" — The Customs Guard Rides The Border — By Quig Sta

Inland waterway traffic of imported goods, through the St. Lawrence River and up the Mississippi is on the increase, necessitating expansion of Customs Bureau facilities to more river towns. Even now smaller type vessels sail into our Great Lake ports direct from Europe. The Customs Service being a sea-sky-land force, we find a patrol of more than 500 officers on northern and southern borders.

From California to the Gulf, and from Puget Sound to Maine, highway traffic from across the border must "enter" through Customs at designated "ports of entry", the same as steamship business from overseas. We are now erecting standard type highway Customs Offices at 49 of the approved "border crossings", so that inspection may be accomplished with despatch. One boundary lines run through miles of wild and lonely country.

Life for the men of the Customs Border Patrol is far from dull. They beat a patrol through stretches of wilderness, trailing smugglers, facing ambuscades, and matching their courage and wits with the cunning of organized gangs on both sides of the international boundry. Some travel afoot, others beat the highroads in speedy cars; one year's speedometer reading being as much as 2 million miles for the total fleet of "land revenue cutters". The hazards encountered in collecting the tariff on the border and in intercepting smugglers is a long story of adventure; a story up of countless thrilling episodes wherein our boys of the Customs Border Patrol "get their man", and lose their lives by the hands of desperadoes.

Tomorrow—Sea Smugglers.

Cleveland City Manager Ousted

Cleveland, Jan. 14 (AP).—The turbulent course of Cleveland's city manager system of government, instituted here first among the nation's larger cities, has reached its bitterest climax today with the summary removal of City Manager William H. Hopkins.

In the stormiest political spectacle Cleveland has seen since the days of Mark Hanna and Tom L. Johnson, the city council by a vote of 14 to 11 last night ousted Hopkins from the position he had held since the manager plan was adopted six years ago.

The immediate outcome of the council's action is the suspension of Hopkins effective at once, with his final removal ordered January 22. Before that date he will be given a public hearing, which he demanded as provided for in the city charter. On January 27, former State Senator Daniel E. Morgan is scheduled to become the new city manager.

Beyond this, however, lies the open enmity between Maurice Maschke, Republican county leader, and Hopkins. Hopkins, it is generally taken for granted, refused to follow instructions of the party leader in the matter of patronage at the City Hall. Friends of the manager plan, which has been upheld in four municipal elections, charged that the ousting of Hopkins was the first move in making the chief governmental office a political one. Maschke has made no statement.

Hopkins's suspension was ordered without any charges being filed. This will be done by a committee of five of the ostensible leaders of the fight against him in the council. They called a meeting today and will report Thursday morning.

"Baby" Was a Spaniel

By LILLIACE M. MITCHELL

(Copyright.)

"I SEE that the next-door neighbors moved in today, Mr. Bates murmured as he sank into the host chair at the dinner table.

"Yes!" his wife responded, a trace of bitterness in her voice.

"Surely you have no hatchet to bury—this early?" he asked.

"Hatchet!" said his wife coldly. "Let me tell you what that woman did—made me the laughing stock of the neighborhood. That's what she did. I went out on the back porch when their things were coming in and I was just about to tell her she could boil her kettle for luncheon over here if their gas wasn't turned on yet when she let out a yell and asked me if I'd seen Baby."

"H'm," muttered Mr. Bates. "Hope Baby rests well at night and doesn't try to compete with the Miller radio!"

"She's a sweet, helpless little thing," went on Mrs. Bates, "you know, the cuddly type with blond hair and blue eyes and a soft little voice that you can hardly hear. Well, she kept looking around, so worried about Baby that I said I'd go downstairs to see if she was anywhere about. I asked how old she was and Mrs. Peterkin—that's their name—said nearly three years old."

"Ah, then she won't cry nights," Mr. Bates said with some satisfaction as he looked towards his salad plate with pleasure.

"So I went downstairs and left her wringing her hands helplessly while the movers tried to struggle past her with a highboy—"

"Say," interrupted Mr. Bates sud denly, "did you go over to see Pickles today, honey? They gave him some worm medicine last night and I kind of worried all day about the pup. I wish I could persuade the agent to let us have him over here."

His wife glared at him and he subsided.

"And when I got downstairs there was no sign of Baby anywhere about. I hurried to the Kenmore corner and looked and rushed back to the Winthrop corner and looked. Mrs. Wellingford came along and I told her to keep a sharp lookout for a little three-year-old girl. She saw the corner policeman and hurried along to tell him the child had got lost in moving."

"I believe I'd have let the mother inform the police about it," said Mr. Bates.

"So the policeman beat on the walk with his stick and two other officers came running along. 'Get down to the corner at Ridge there quick!' the first officer told them. 'The child's only three and she won't know about the crossing lights! Run!' And off they tore as fast as they could. Well, I thought I'd run upstairs again to see if by any chance Baby could be hiding in the apartment anywhere. You know, sometimes a child will run into a clothes closet or climb into a cedar chest."

"I know it," sighed Mr. Bates, who remembered the child of his wife's sister.

"By the time I got upstairs again the new neighbor was all smiles. Baby, it seemed, hadn't been out of the flat at all. I didn't stop to ask any questions about it but chased down to tell Mrs. Wellingford and the officers. Why, the way they started off, you'd have supposed it had been a kidnaping at least! And they asked a lot of questions that I couldn't answer because I hadn't stopped for questions when I heard Baby was missing. Finally I got upstairs for the second time and stopped in to see where the child had been. And what do you suppose, Harvey?"

"What?" he asked, trying to infuse just the proper amount of astonishment to suit her and yet leaving a little reserve to use when she let fall her news.

"Baby wasn't a baby at all," said Mr. Bates triumphantly. "She told me Baby was under the stove right now and there under the gas range was a basket with a black spaniel looking up at me brightly. Baby was a dog!"

"A dog?" echoed her husband blankly. Then a smile broke over his features. "A dog? Well, if they had to make concessions like that to get a new tenant, I guess there'll be no kick if I get Pickels over here from the kennels, eh? Where's that phone book, Mabel, eh? I'll phone them to bring Pickles right over!"

Foreign Language Study

In an address Dr. Henry Grattan Doyle of George Washington university made the following statement: "not only are foreign languages the indispensable tools for international dealings of all kinds, but a knowledge of foreign languages and literature is the gateway to the understanding of foreign culture, foreign civilizations and foreign psychologies. . . . Students should begin their study early and should continue at least four, and preferably six years."

Poor Fido!

Margaret Anne, five years old, has a fondness for chicken, which was served at a recent evening meal. On rising the next morning, she asked:

"Any chicken left, Mother?"

Mother jokingly, said, "No," and Margaret Anne sighed: "Oh dear! I wanted some for my dog!"

Yes, That's True

Men's Club Entertains Guests

Accord, Jan. 14.—The Accord Men's Club entertained as their guests at dinner the Stone Ridge Men's Club on Wednesday evening last. One hundred and twenty hungry men did justice to the repast.

After the cigars, President Tanner introduced President Briggs of Stone Ridge and President Connor of the newly organized Men's Club of Cottekill. The Rev. Mr. Van Toll and the Rev. Mr. Scholten were asked for a word of good cheer. They were followed by Randall N. Saunders of the Education Department, Albany. Stories, jokes and wit enlivened the occasion but the best was yet to come.

A most excellent entertainment under the management of Mr. Obenaus of Kingston followed. The leading features were a string quartet led by Mr. Puttlitz. The violin solo of Miss Obenaus was excellent as were the numbers by Mr. Obenaus. Prof. Eklund, who has a vocal studio in Kingston, gave two songs. An outstanding feature was the fancy dancing by Prof. Krugh, who also has a studio in Kingston. The dialogue by Harry Barnhart and Mr. Obenaus was received with a storm of applause. Thus ended one of the social affairs for which the Accord Men's Club is so well known. The February meeting will be Ladies' Night when they expect to show the "fair ones" a good time.

Two Robbers and Detective Killed

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—Two robbers and a detective were killed early today as the robbers rushing from an apartment they has just held up, ran into a police squad that had responded to a burglar alarm. A third robber who barricaded himself in the apartment house half way was routed by tear bombs and captured.

The robbers had entered the apartment of Harry Sucherman. Before they had left, after robbing him, Sucherman touched a burglar alarm which aroused others in the building, and they in turn called police.

When the robbers stepped from the front door of the building a police squad was just running up the steps. The bandits slammed the door and barricaded themselves in the hall. Tear bombs finally forced them to open the door, and they shot it out with the officers.

LAST NIGHT on the RADIO

On Wednesday evening from 8 to 8:30 the "Gold Medal Fast Freight" will pull into forty-three radio stations on the Columbia Broadcasting System extending from coast to coast. The whistle of the locomotive, ringing of the bell and the oncoming chugging of the engine will announce the arrival of this new radio feature sponsored by General Mills, Inc., millers of Gold Medal Flour and package foods. Included in the crew of the "Gold Medal Fast Freight" will be the Wheaties Quartet, for three years one of the most famous radio features of the northwest, and with them will be the Gold Medal organist, the latter a nationally known radio and recording star.

Odd Rainfalls

Golden rain, yellow rain and "showers of sulphur" occur now and then. A shower of this sort sent scores of frightened peasants into the churches Luxembourg a few years ago, as they feared that it forboded punishment for the numerous sins which, doubtless, they had on their consciences. These yellow rains are due to the presence in the upper air of large quantities of the pollen of certain pines and fir trees.

Getting the Hang of It

"Even the bluest of the bluebloods," says the warden of Sing Sing prison, "cannot trace their ancestry far back without encountering the gallows or a prison." In studying the family tree no noose is good news.—South Bend Tribune.

More and More COLDS treated externally

A GENERATION ago when Vicks VapoRub was originated, the idea of treating colds without "dosing" was almost unheard of. Today, more and more colds are treated this modern way, and the whole trend of medical practice is away from needless "dosing."

Mothers of young children especially appreciate Vicks, because it checks colds without risk of upsetting delicate little stomachs. Of course it is equally good for adults. Just rubbed on, Vicks acts through the skin like a poultice or plaster; and, at the same time, it gives off medicated vapors which are inhaled direct to the inflamed air-passages.

To keep pace with the ever-increasing demand for this better method of treating colds, the famous Vick slogan has again been changed, as there are now "Over 26 Million Jars Used Yearly."

Famous Wax Modeler

Mme. Tussaud was the founder of Mme. Tussaud's exhibition of wax figures in London. Born in Bern in 1760, she was taken to Paris while a child by her uncle, who practiced wax modeling as a fine art. She became adept and modeled many of the great people of France. She married a Frenchman named Tussaud, from whom she soon separated. Removing to London, she took with her part of her collection in the Palais Royal, and the idea of her chamber of horrors. Her wax figures were successfully shown and her exhibition became permanent.

News from the World on Wheels

Closing the best year in its long history, Olds Motor Works is entering 1930 with increasing production schedules for both the Oldsmobile Six and Viking Eight. It is expected that the production during January will exceed that of the same month a year ago. Factory officials report that 1929 has repeated the record of consistent sales gains which have been recorded for the past several years. The production and shipment of cars for domestic consumption, exclusive of exports, during 1929 registered 28 per cent greater than during 1928, which was the best previous year in the company's history. During the past two years the increased business has averaged 40 per cent.

"Auburn sales at the New York Automobile Show are considerably ahead of those for the same period last year," R. H. Faulkner, vice president of the company, announced today. Commenting on this increase, Faulkner said: "Auburn's program for 1930 has created an unusual amount of interest and the Cord front drive car is selling far in excess of our expectations. The tremendous number of prospects obtained at the show would indicate that the acceptance of Auburn and Cord cars for this year will greatly exceed that of last. Every indication is that the dam which has been holding up interest somewhat in automobiles in the last two months has been broken by the national automobile show, and reports indicate that our experience is also being enjoyed by many other manufacturers. Automobile sales in 1930 will be controlled primarily by values.

After 16 years of supremacy, the six cylinder car has given way to the eight, particularly in the price field above $1,000. This is shown by the 1930 New York Automobile Show, where 28 out of 46 makers displayed eights. At last year's New York show, 23 manufacturers exhibited eights. Figures on the number of eight cylinder makes exhibited at the New York Automobile Show since 1926 are of considerable interest in the light of this popular swing to eights. At the 1926 show there were 18 makes of eight cylinder cars on display. In 1927 the number was 22; in 1928, 22; in 1929, 23 and this year 28. The advance from the higher priced six to the eight has now attained the momentum of the historic shift from fours to sixes ten years ago. In 1914 when the swing started, 54.2 per cent of all makes of American cars were fours. Today only 4 per cent are fours. Among the first manufacturers to see the handwriting on the wall and switch from the four to the six in response to the public demand for greater and more flexible power, Studebaker again played the role of pioneer and pointed the way to the popular priced eight. In 1927, Studebaker brought out the eight cylinder car, the President Eight, priced to command mass sales. So successful was this move that it was quickly followed by the introduction of the Commander Eight in January, 1929, and by the Dictator Eight last summer.

The display of the Packard Motor Car Company at the automobile show consists of representative types of its new cars which were introduced first in the fall. Packard has three distinct lines of cars, the Standard Eight, Custom Eight and DeLuxe Eight. In addition there are the Individual Custom Eight types which were displayed at the New York and Chicago salons. There are 11 different body types in each of the three lines with bodies made in Packard's own body factories and four different wheel bases. The five passenger Standard Eight sedan is mounted on a chassis with a wheel base of 127½ inches and the other ten models of the Standard Eight line have a wheel base of 134½ inches. All models of the Custom Eight line have a wheel base of 140½ inches and the DeLuxe Eight models are on a chassis with a wheel base of 145½ inches. The Packards on display bear out the statements which have been to the effect that a "Packard is always a Packard." Lines of all three types of cars remain characteristically Packard.

Speed comparable to that of passenger cars, with the extreme power and rugged chassis construction necessary to satisfy the severest demands of modern day commercial transportation, is found in the new Willys Six 1½ ton truck announced by Willys-Overland. Four speed transmission and 65 horsepower engine meet all the requirements for heavy hauling and provide unusually satisfactory performance on the highway. Announcement of this truck, together with a new Willys-Knight truck as additions to the already large truck lines manufactured by Willys-Overland, reveals a new idea in commercial car manufacture which, for the first time, gives the commercial car buyer as large a range of selection as is offered the purchaser of a passenger car.

Girl Victim Of Tack Trick

Mount Morris, N. Y., Jan. 14 (AP).—A recitation in Griegsville High School was interrupted by muffled laughter when Angelina Ceronie, 11-year-old star forward of the girls' basketball team, returned to her seat and unsuspectingly sat on a thumb tack.

Angelina was a good sport. When the teacher rapped for order she didn't tell.

Three days later she was absent from school and today the age old prank is a joke no longer.

Blood poisoning had developed from the tiny wound and Angelina died yesterday.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Ceronie, of Craigs, were completing the funeral arrangements today.

Works Both Ways

He that openly tells his friends all that he thinks of them, must expect that they will secretly tell his enemies much that they do not think of him.—Colton.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—The stock market made further recovery today on a slightly increased volume of trading. Buying orders were distributed over a fairly broad list, but the steels, public utilities, amusements and electrical manufacturing issues gave the best demonstrations of group strength. Coppers, oils and motors were rather sluggish, and the buying movement in the rails subsided, at least temporarily.

There were a few unfavorable developments in the day's business news. Preliminary estimates indicated another sharp increase in crude oil production last week, and the American Bureau of Metal Statistics reported an increase of 44,400 tons in the surplus stocks of refined copper last month.

Call money renewed unchanged at 4½ per cent.

Reports of a further upturn in steel mill operations stimulated the demand for the steel shares. U. S. Steel common sold as high as 172½ and Republican and Superior steels and Colorado Fuel recorded early gains of 2 points or more. In the public utility group, the demand centered largely in American Telephone, American Power and Light, Consolidated Gas and Stone and Webster.

A flurry of buying took place in the amusement issue in the early afternoon. Radio, Radio Keith Orpheum, Loews, Columbia Graphophone, Warner Bros.' Pictures and Fox Film all were marked up a point or more.

A few high priced specialties, including J. I. Case, Vulcan Detinning, New York and Harlem and Columbian Carbon, were marked up 4½ to 6 points. Western Union dropped 4½ points, Congress Cigar 3, Northern Pacific 1¾ and Montgomery Ward 1.

Federation Executive Meeting.

Owing to the fact that the annual meeting of the Board of Managers of the Home for the Aged comes on the same day as the January meeting of the executive committee of the Federation of Women's Clubs, it has been arranged for the executive committee to meet directly following the board meeting, at four o'clock at the home of Mrs. William Lawton, 42 Crown street. A full attendance will be necessary to complete arrangements for the coming Federation luncheon.

Sorosis.

Mrs. Lasher was the hostess of Sorosis on Monday afternoon. The club voted unanimously for a luncheon as the next open meeting for the Federation of Women's Clubs, the date to be February first. Mrs. Lasher had the paper for the day on "A Trip Down the Rhine." A rarely realistic trip it proved to be as presented by Mrs. Lasher, who gave much of the legendary background of tradition of this famous river, adding a very human touch to her paper. The roll call was current events. Next week the club will meet with Mrs. Van Wagenen.

Amphion Glee Club Concert.

The Amphion Glee Club of Newburgh is composed of more than sixty men from Orange, Dutchess, Rockland and Ulster counties, who have been studying together for some time under the able musical leadership of Robert Williams, organist of St. John's Church, Kingston. This club, which includes splendid voices of full range, has an enviable reputation among musical circles from Albany to New York city. Through the efforts of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R., Kingston music lovers will have the opportunity of hearing this men's glee club and soloist on the evening of February 12, in the chapel of the First Reformed Church.

Twentieth Century Club.

The first 1930 meeting of the Twentieth Century Club was held on Monday afternoon at the home of Miss Hasbrouck on St. James street. The club expressed its appreciation of the pleasure afforded the members who accepted the invitation of Sorosis and were privileged to hear the fine talk on music by Miss Milligan, of the State Federation. This club was in favor of the Federation luncheon. Following the roll call on "Wit and Humor", Mrs. Van Ingen gave a splendid paper on "Our Colleges and Universities". Presenting her subject as a talk, with quotations from authoritative sources, she made her subject very real. One new member was received into the club, Miss Millham. The next meeting of the club will be with Miss Teller.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Jan. 14—The hail and sleet which fell to the depth of an inch or more Saturday night, followed by a cold freezing rain on Sunday, made the day far from pleasant.

Despite the stormy afternoon there was a good attendance at the Sunday church service. The Rev. and Mrs. Ahrens were accompanied by several young men from the Walden Baptist Church. The text chosen for the sermon was from James 1:12. From this wonderful passage the pastor presented a very commendable and inspirational address.

One of the biggest skimmingtons ever given a wedded couple occurred at the time of the marriage of Clarence Markle of Shokan perhaps fifty years ago, at which time the famous Sheepskin Band was in full flower, and in which Mr. Markle was a snare drummer. The accouterments for a skimmington in those days was not complete without the presence of Dave Winnie's old cannon, (now peacefully reposing in the Senate House yard). The heavy piece with trailer attached, was hauled down from Cold Brook by two yokes of oxen during the afternoon. Hank Longyear, one of the social leaders of the time, was chosen captain. The line formed at the Reformed Church, some 200 strong. About nine o'clock the procession started up the turnpike, a rope having been attached to the cannon. In the party were the Shandaken members of the band, the Randall boys, who were famous drummers, and farther on the mountain boys from the Coons neighborhood joined the party, the cannon was dragged up the hill above the house to a commanding position and a heavy charge of blasting powder crammed down its cavernous throat and wadded down with newspapers, wet sod and gravelstones. The gay wedding party, seemingly unmindful of what was taking place outside, was just sitting down to the banquet table. Everything was in readiness, the band formed in a circle, at a signal from the captain, bedlam itself broke loose, the old cannon belched forth, awakening the echoes which reverberated across the valley, window glass jingled, saws rang and clanged, horns and sea shells and guns added to the racket, while above all was heard the heavy boom-boom of the base drums in the hands of Sol Randall and Bill Bogart—They sure did have some great times in those bygone days.

Circle No. 3 of the Ladies' Aid Society of St. James M. E. Church will serve a cafeteria supper on Wednesday evening, January 15, from 5 until 8 o'clock. The menu will include: Spanish rice, potato salad, Virginia baked beans, cabbage salad, macaroni and cheese, buttered rolls, apple pie, ice cream and coffee. The public is invited to attend.

Very favorable comment has been passed on the splendid manner in which the volunteer choir and soloists at Trinity M. E. Church sang three numbers from Gaul's "Holy City," Sunday morning. Alton Shader, the Misses Spink and Bailey were the featured singers. The musical numbers sung were "A New Heaven and a New Earth," "These Are They" and "They Shall Hunger No More." That the congregation was pleased with the program has been expressed by requests for a repetition in the near future.

Princess Selected Moderate Styles For Trousseau

Wardrobe "Made in Belgium" Accents Rare Laces Lavishly Used for Gowns and Lingerie

Outfit Ran Entire Gamut of Soft Pastel Shades With Predilection for Velvet and Georgettes Even for Millinery—Styles Are Moderate—Skirts Do Not Go to Great Lengths

Brussels—When the lovely Princess Marie-Jose of Belgium married Prince Umberto of Piedmont at the Quirinal Palace in Rome, the sun shone on a fair bride whose trousseau had been a matter of speculation and discussion for months. That it is the trousseau not only of a princess but a woman of fashion made it all the more interesting. In every detail it followed the prevailing mode with an avoidance of extremes. That every bit of finery bore proudly the label "Made in Belgium" surely must have endeared the Princess to her people. That such quantities of rare laces were used was not only a matter of acknowledging the importance of lace in the fashions of the moment, but was in recognition of the importance of lace making in Belgium. It was another graceful gesture on the part of the Princess and her mother, for Queen Elizabeth had made it a point that her only daughter should be fitted out by Belgian seamstresses, lingerie makers, milliners, bottiers, couturiers, and, last but not least, lace makers. Reports published in a Paris boulevard paper to the effect that the young Belgian princess had ordered a nightgown with a three-yard train, in Paris, were smiled at in the Brussels palace.

"A three-yard trained nightgown, in Paris?" laughed the court marshal, Chevalier de Patoul. "Why I don't see how the princess could possibly sleep in it." He added that an English newspaper story on an all-white trousseau of the princess was also pure invention.

Pastel Shades in Lingerie Royal Choice.

White, as a matter of fact, is fairly rare in the trousseau of the princess. In lingerie, Princess Marie-Jose prefers pastel shades, mostly coral and salmon, and adds only an occasional item in white or in a rare color such as "absinthe."

Practically all of her step-ins were in these shades and trimmed richly with bisque-colored needlepoint laces. Step-ins predominated although there were also several sets consisting of shirt and panties.

Nightgowns are interestingly cut along princess lines. One nightgown was made of salmon-pink crepe satin, trimmed with an inset of fine bisque-colored lace, and cut in simple princess style, the front being three or four inches shorter than the back. It cannot be said, however, that the princess goes to extreme lengths for her nightgowns, or for her frocks.

The princess showed a marked preference for fabrics other than felt when ordering her large collection of hats, all of which were carefully fitted to her head. She particularly loves velvet and georgette and many of her smart afternoon hats are made of these soft materials. She is also partial to softly draped hats and these materials lend themselves charmingly to such effects.

Hat and Frocks Match—

The hats practically always match the frock for which they were designed, as to color, but not always as to material. The princess will wear a panne velvet, draped hat in beige-pink with a frock in the same color, but made of silk crepe, and with a black crushed velvet coat, with fur matching the hat and frock. In her trousseau, Princess Marie-Jose several times interprets the ensemble idea this way: hat and frock match; but the coat forms a contrast.

Since Princess Marie-Jose is fond of fine jewelry, several lovely sets of jewelry were made for her. The princess likes to wear earrings, not only in the evening, but also in the afternoon, and usually chooses combinations of pearls and precious stones.

For theatre evenings, the princess chooses wraps with rich fur trimmings, for instance, one bright lacquer-red panne velvet wrap with white moullon collar and cuffs.

The bridal coat of white chiffon velvet lined with ermine was made in Rome upon the special request of Prince Umberto. It bears the emblems of the Princess of Savoy.

The trousseau on the whole conforms to the prevailing ideas of silhouette and color, pastel shades which are now coming to the fore so strongly in fashion, being especially well represented which fact will of course give them further impetus.

Printed Georgette Deshabille.

A deshabille is made three-quarter length in a beautiful printed georgette, with ruby and black flowers on a beige background, gold threads woven through the pattern, and a border of plain ruby-colored georgette around the hem of the sleeves and coat.

Printed materials are fairly rare in this royal trousseau. In most cases, Princess Marie-Jose has chosen plain materials in interesting delicate shades which are hard to define. There is, for instance, one silk velvet in a pinkish-gray shade, faintly reminiscent of "tourterelle." A silk crepe frock is chosen in beige-pink, a georgette frock in pastel blue. The young princess is a tall and graceful blonde who always has looked her best in such delicate tints as these.

Princess Favors Irregular Hemline.

Several frocks of the princess indicate that even in royal houses there is some hesitation about the length of skirts and the place of the waistline. Most of the dresses which are made for Princess Marie-Jose have irregular hemlines, owing to floating or flaring panels, draped effects and flounces. The waistline is sometimes allowed to hover indefinitely somewhere above the hips; in other cases is it indicated by a sash which is tied with close fit above the hips; the bodice often blouses slightly just above the waistline. Practically all of the princess' frocks rely upon self-material for trimming effects; little wings, flaring cuffs, shirred and gathered parts, an intricate cut and insets. The trimmings of lace, in most cases real lace made by deft fingers in Flanders, are lavished upon the lingerie, not upon the frocks.

Queen Elizabeth made only one stipulation concerning the wedding dress and that was that lace was to be used as a trimming. The veil worn by the bride was one which many princesses do Belgique had worn at their weddings and was of rare and very old Brussels lace. The gown as every one knows was of white panne velvet with the train richly bordered with ermine.

That rayon silk is nowadays considered suitable for a royal trousseau, may surprise some women who still believe rayon not "quite the thing." Princess Marie-Jose chose an attractive grayish-mauve artificial silk material for a dressy afternoon gown. A beret in beige-pink was made for her of artificial panne velvet.

Straight-Lined Mink Coat.

A Canada mink coat, cut along classic, straight lines, full length, with shawl collar, was made for Princess Marie-Jose. The coat is designed for afternoon wear; the fur is worked in the traditional way, vertically, and therefore, still more emphasizes the slender tallness of the princess.

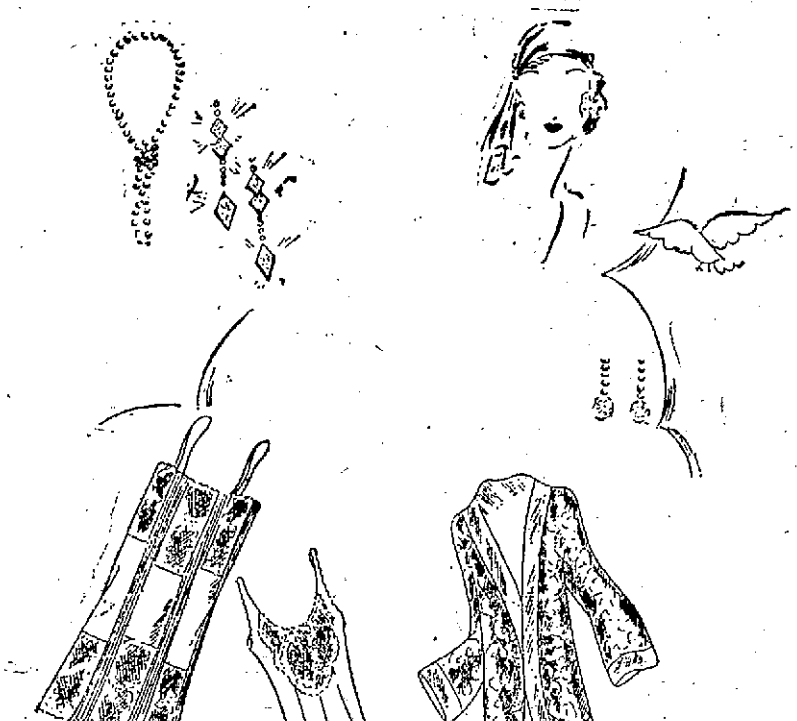
Sketches From the Trousseau of Princess Marie Jose

A type of ensemble for which Princess Marie Jose of Belgium shows a preference, and in the pinky-beige of which she is said to be especially fond. The beige satin is matched by fox lavishly applied on the three-quarter coat.

Below, collar of pearls, worn knotted at front; pendant earrings composed of finely carved Jade disks; another pair composed of pearls, small diamonds and metal filigree. Draped hat of pinky beige chiffon velvet, with ruffle at back. Chemise of shell pink crepe, trimmed with cream lace. Nightgown of salmon pink crepe satin with inset of fine cream needle lace. The gown is princess and slightly back dipping. Boudoir coat, two-thirds length, of printed georgette, lamie, ruby, gold and black on beige ground; bordered and lined with plain ruby georgette.



This ensemble above is described as the costume which the princess wore upon her arrival in Rome, preceding the ceremony of her marriage with the Crown Prince Humbert of Italy. This ensemble is all white moire and fox.

The Straight Line Passes in French Lingerie

(Copyright, 1930, Fairchild)

A peach flat crepe gown sketched in Paris illustrates the influence of the new silhouette even on under things. Deep Alencon lace is the chosen trimming both for the gown and the bed-jacket which is shown at the right and of course matches it. Note the generous fulness in both gown and jacket, this being important in the development of French lingerie models.

Waistline Should Not Be Too High; Not Too Tight

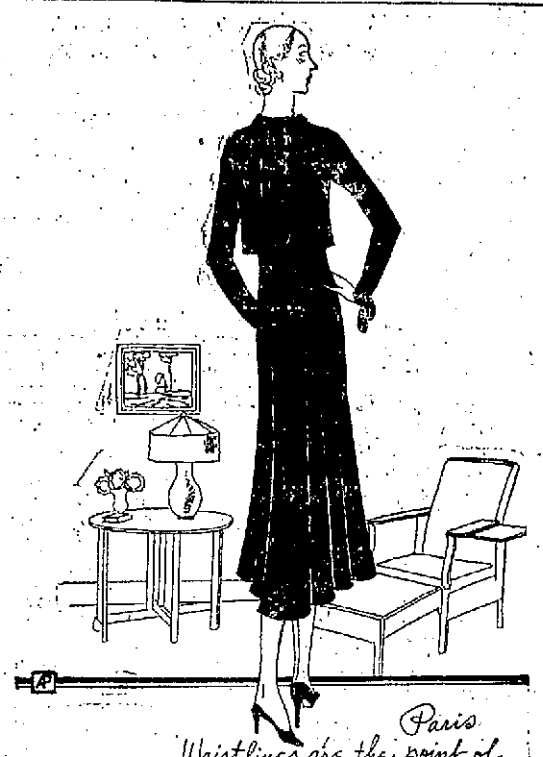
It is important to know a few fundamental facts before one adopts the waistline in present fashion. Over exaggeration is easily possible and is not in good taste.

Designers have not revived the hour glass silhouette nor do they seem to evidence any intention to do so. The waistline should not be placed too high nor should it be confined too tightly. The correct interpretation of this new phase of the mode is a conservative one.

Hunter's Green Is Used in Afternoon Ensembles

Hunter's green is often mentioned this season and it has been used successfully for the formal afternoon ensemble. Mixed green tones are to be found in tweeds for sports and informal daytime wear and jade, or sometimes a greenish blue of the turquoise sort is combined with black or used alone for evening gowns.

If one is good without being good for something he's no good.



Paris Waistlines are the point of interest in the newest dresses I see. This chantal model of black crepe de chine has a fitted waistline raised by a bolero jacket. Rita

TANLAC WINS!

Two More Victories Over Stubborn Stomach Trouble—Joyous News For Other Sufferers

SO HAPPY MUST TELL WHAT TANLAC DID FOR HER

FROM old and young they come, letters overflowing with words of praise and gratitude telling of wonderful, almost unbelievable relief they received from this matchless medicine. Local people, many of whom you know, are highly endorsing Tanlac. Take for instance, Mrs. Mary Bond who writes: "The moment food entered my stomach I would have such terrible pains that I could hardly move. Although I had doctored and taken all kinds of medicines I had never been able to find anything to help me until a boarder recommended Tanlac. I have now taken five bottles and am delighted with the way it has helped me. You can imagine how good I felt when I ate a nice big steak and didn't have a bit of trouble after having lived on dried toast for almost a year."

FINALLY FINDS RIGHT THING IN TANLAC

First Bottle Proof Enough

THOSE who have found only disappointment and failure in their search for health will do well to profit by the experience of this well-known man, Mr. Patrick O. Keefe. "For a number of years," says Mr. Keefe, "I suffered from stomach troubles. I could hardly eat anything without suffering gas and terrible bloating and I was always constipated. I heard about the benefits others derived from Tanlac, I admit I was skeptical for I had tried so many different medicines without results. Finally I was persuaded to try Tanlac and I will say the first bottle was proof enough for me. I have now taken several bottles and a wonderful change has come over me. My bowels are regular, digestive organs have been toned up, and I can eat three meals without gas, bloating or any misery." Tanlac is not only a wonderful stomach medicine but a great tonic.

RE-WINTER SUCCESSES FROM THE STANDPOINT OF THE CHIC PARISIENNE

New York—Judging from recent orts, the very French dressmakers o introduced long and full skirts the waiting world, and who inted the revolutionary ideas with ich we are now familiar, are both erprised and amused at the success their venture. One has often heard t sensational or freak fashions re created in Paris for the Americ- ns only, but this statement seemed metimes difficult to believe. A great al of time, talent and capital is re- uired to assemble a collection so it difficult to reconcile French thrifti h the notion that such collections re designed more or less as a joke. French women rarely go to extremes and almost never rush the ason. While the ankle length skirt s had wholehearted endorsement er five, a skirt less than 12½ ches from the floor is a rarity in ris at other times and that it is ver allowed to sag or dip below the e of the coat is something to think out. The untidy effect of so many ternoon costumes worn here has en impressive. When the hem is even, Paris insists that it be only ghtly so, a discreet dip at back or e bring preferred. It is expected wever that with the approach of ring, and the laying aside of win- coats in favor of jackets, that the re exaggerated uneven hemline y be revived.

French women have a preference the belted silhouette for day ar. One sees some princess frocks, t it is more usual to add a belt ich may be worn just above the or at normal. The side seams ve to give the necessary molded e without which no costume seems ite correct at the moment.

In contrast to the molded line as en by night, daytime dresses have metimes to break the line, such as bolero, the aforesaid belt or some ver device. Bolero treatments em to become daily more important. d there is no prejudice against ghtly bloused effects or an unoken line resulting from the use of rring or pleats. Generally speak- evening gowns have bodices with broken lines while day time frocks ve their bodices softened between and bust.

Still thinking in terms of what ris is wearing, necklines are decidedly mounting. The little school l collar, hugging the base of the oat is one of the most approved uches, the lingerie tabs introduced Patou and the lingerie touches, at ck and wrist which were such a ature of the Chanel mid season collion are much worn. Patou, it may remembered, revived the bateau e of neckline with the addition of binding and a slight curtailment of breadth. This neckline seems to welcomed by the chic Parisienne. Although America seems to have en concerned with novelty sleeves, e report is that Paris is only mildly erested in sleeve developments, the ason for this being that every one ems convinced that once spring is re, the sleeveless mode will be re- ed.

Something in Their Favor

Love and honor are old-fashioned ings, but they never bring you to e point where all depends on the chemy of an alienist.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Jersey Appeals to Girl or Short, Stout Woman

Jersey is an important material this season both in popularity and style appeal, says the Woman's Home Companion. Just as important is the vogue for the one-pieced belted dress. When you put the two together you have the beginning of a real Paris model. Place the belt at the top of the hips and be sure that the skirt is amply full and considerably longer than last year's. Then choose two tones of this winter's brown or green or red, use the darker for a deep V in the bodice and for turn-up cuffs, and your Paris dress is complete. A dress which appeals to the young girl and which is excellent in line for the short, stout woman.

Gloves That Harmonize With Frock Are Stylish

The Maggy Rouff glove, the Worth glove, the Jane Regny glove—all these are eloquent testimonials to the importance of accessories in the mode, and how far we have progressed since the days when designers could afford to be concerned with the matter of frocks alone, observes a fashion writer in the New York Times. Increasing formality means more interest in gloves. Where one pair would answer before, the well-dressed woman must now have half a dozen, and these in colors, types and fabrics to complement the costume with which they are worn.

It is in recognition of these facts that the leading couturiers now present their own gloves, showing details characteristic of present-day fashions.

With the bridge, matinee or dinner frock the classic pull-on in suede or kidskin continues the favored type. Suede has always appealed to women, but glace kid is rapidly gaining in popularity—perhaps because it is far more practical, but also because it is being presented in new designs and lovely colorings. These pull-on gloves are much longer than those of last season, for the long glove has definitely arrived. Some show the three-button fastening, while others are buttonless—the latter being newer. Delicate shades of beige are much worn, beige with either a gray or a pinky cast, according to the color of the frock and the other accessories. Black suede gloves have enjoyed an unprecedented popularity, especially with the black frock.

White and off-white gloves have also returned to vogue for formal afternoon wear, for they are a true expression of the fashion for elegance. The new pale creamy gardenia tint in a six-button glove of glace kidskin adds the final touch of perfection to the ensemble of black with lavish furs. Gardenia, by the way, is one of the shades much talked of for Southern resort wear.

Broadway Stars pass merciless CLOSE-UP TEST

Like 9 out of 10 screen stars, they have long kept their skin at its best with Lux Toilet Soap . . .

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE (Candle Light) says: "I'm enthusiastic about it."

MARILYN MILLER (Sally) says: "It keeps my skin satin-smooth."

BEATRICE LILLIE, delightful comedienne, is devoted to Lux Toilet Soap.

CLAUDETTE COLBERT (SeeNaplesandDie) "Keeps my skin so smooth!"

WINNIE LIGHTNER says: "It cares for my skin so perfectly! I love it."

BOBBE ARNST says: "It is certainly a marvelously delicate soap."

RUTH CHATTERTON, much beloved star, says: "Lux Toilet Soap leaves one's skin so smooth!"

MARY EATON, charming star, says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin always beautifully fine and smooth."

THE moment the talkies "arrived," many of the most famous stars of the Broadway stage were signed by the great motion picture studios. Then, under the glare from the huge incandescent close-up lights, they faced the cruelest test a skin can possibly meet.

Unless their skin showed alluringly smooth and fine on the screen, they could scarcely hope to "get across" in talking and singing pictures.

These Broadway stars passed the test, needless to say. Theirs was the flawlessly smooth skin demanded for the innumerable close-ups of sound pictures. And never were they more appreciative of the gentle care Lux Toilet Soap has given their skin.

For long ago the famous women of the theater made Lux Toilet Soap their own. Long ago it was made the official soap in 71 of the 74 legitimate theaters in New York alone—and in other leading theaters throughout the country.

Hollywood found out years ago that no girl ever becomes a motion picture star unless her skin shows perfect on the screen. That is why, of the 521 important actresses in Hollywood, including all stars, 511 are devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. It keeps the skin lovely and smooth as a flower petal.

It was at the request of the actresses themselves that all the great film studios have made this white, delicately fragrant soap official in their dressing rooms.

You will be delighted with Lux Toilet Soap, too! You can keep your skin attractively clear and smooth just as the famous women of the stage and screen keep theirs—by using it. And it does lather so very generously, even in the hardest water! Order several cakes—today.

LENORE ULRIC (The Sandy Hooker): "It keeps my skin always exquisitely smooth."

HELEN MORGAN (Sweet Adeline) says: "—a wonderfully satisfactory soap."

ANN PENNINGTON, adorable star, says: "I wouldn't be without this lovely white soap!"

JOAN BENNETT says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so smooth. It is certainly a joy!"

JEANETTE MACDONALD says: "I consider it a real find. It keeps my skin lovely."

HELEN CHANDLER says: "I'm devoted to Lux Toilet Soap. It's delightful!"

NORMA LEE says: "It is so soothing and it leaves your skin just like velvet."

HELEN KANE says: "Lux Toilet Soap keeps my skin so very softly smooth and clear."

PEGGY WOOD (London production of Bitter Sweet) says: "I always use Lux Toilet Soap."

Athletics and Browns Tied in Defensive Work

Chicago, Jan. 14 (AP).—The world's champion Philadelphia Athletics and the St. Louis Browns had the tightest defenses of all American League clubs in 1929, official fielding averages disclosed today.

The Athletics accepted 5,684 chances and the Browns 5,971, each compiling a grand season's average of .975 or three points higher than the leading mark recorded by Washington in 1928 and two points less than the all-time major record established by the New York Yankees in 1923.

Detroit, leader in team hitting, was last in team fielding, making 242 errors for an average of .961. New York was third with a .971 average; Chicago fourth with .970, and Washington and Cleveland tied for fifth and sixth with .968. Boston, with a .965 mark was seventh.

Only one player, Willie Kamm of the Chicago White Sox, retained his fielding championship. Kamm defended his third base post at a .978 clip, accepting 491 chances and making but 11 errors in 145 games. In 1928, he fielded .977.

Joe Judge, Washington veteran, led the first basemen. He played in 142 games, made 1,323 putouts and 88 assists and only six errors for an average of .996. Lew Fonseca of Cleveland, new American League batting champion, was second to Judge with a .995 average.

Charles Gehringer, Detroit's youthful second baseman, was the best defensive player of the year around the keystone station. He had 401 putouts, 501 assists and but 23 errors in 154 games for a .975 mark; Gehringer also participated in 93 double plays. Joan Hodapp of Cleveland had an average of .977 but he competed in only 72 games.

Shortstops were unusually mediocre in defense, the averages revealed, with Joe Boley of the Athletics best with a .963 average. Boley played in only 88 games. His record was 161 putouts, 229 assists, and 15 errors. Leo Durocher was second with a .958 average.

Al Simmons of the Athletics had Fred Schulte of the Browns tied for first place among the outfielders with .983 averages. In 112 games in centerfield, Schulte accepted 373 chances while Simmons had 368 in 142 games in leftfield.

Harold Ruel led the catchers with .988 for 83 games although Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane of the Athletics, whose average was .983, was regarded as the best backstop in the league.

Thirteen pitchers, who were in 24 games or more, had perfect fielding records, Jack Russell of Boston accepting 84 chances. Five triple plays were executed throughout the season. Two by the Yankees and one each by St. Louis, Chicago and Detroit. Willie Kamm of the White Sox completed a triple play by pulling the hidden ball trick for the third time in his major league career.

Cleveland, leaders in double plays in 1928 with 187, repeated in 1929 but with a 162 total.

Thursday night the Y. M. C. A. team goes to Hudson to mix it with the Boys' Club of that city. Saturday will find the Kingston team at Westfield, Mass., where it will clash in a return game with the Westfield Y. M. C. A. quintet.

Licenses of 633 Boxers Suspended

Albany, Jan. 14.—The licenses of no less than 633 boxers in this state were suspended during the past year by the State Athletic Commission, while the licenses of 13 were revoked and 37 were denied a license. The annual report of Secretary of State Edward J. Flynn, made last night to the governor and the legislature, outlines to a considerable extent the work of the State Athletic Commission during the year. The report shows that four clubs were suspended during the year, one was denied a license, while seven seconds were suspended and a license was refused thirteen.

When it comes to managers, the report has this to say:

"The State Athletic Commission has endeavored during the past year to place boxing upon the highest possible plane. In order to accomplish its purpose it has been found necessary to exercise extreme care in the granting of licenses to managers. Past experience has shown that many of the managers are looking out more for their own interests than of the boxers they handle. Much has been accomplished along this line during the past year as is shown in the fact that 47 applications by managers for licenses have been denied."

During the year the State Athletic Commission suspended 18 wrestlers, revoked the license of one and denied a license to two. All told licenses were issued during the year to 11,583 boxers, 32 clubs, 774 seconds, 41 judges, 256 managers, 32 matchmakers, 18 physicians, 20 referees, 13 timekeepers and 132 wrestlers. Fees from such source amounted to $40,910. Taxes from the clubs, paid directly to the state treasury, totaled $221,780.91.

The Division of the State Racing Commission, also under Mr. Flynn, shows that there were 171 days of racing in this state last year with gross receipts of $2,919,775.75.

Gene Tunney Operated Upon

New York, Jan. 14 (AP).—Gene Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, spent a very comfortable night, sleeping peacefully, it was announced this morning at the Presbyterian Hospital, where he was operated on yesterday. His condition was declared to be satisfactory.

The operation, a minor one for the removal of a stone that had formed at the entrance to Tunney's right kidney, was announced as "entirely successful". Tunney was in the operating room just 25 minutes.

Surgeons had feared that it might be necessary to take out the kidney itself, but the operation proved to be much simpler than had been anticipated and the obstruction, a stone about the size of a bean, was removed without difficulty.

Tunney probably will remain at the hospital for about three weeks. Mrs. Tunney, the former Polly Lauder, occupies an adjoining room so that she can be close to her husband during his convalescence.

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould

(Associated Press Sports Editor.)

Believe it or not, but "Sharkey is through knocking down every unsuitable opponent that Madison Square Garden digs up for him."

So bellowed Johnny Buckley, Sharkey's manager, at the height of an oration delivered in an attempt to justify the Boston heavyweight's refusal to fight Tuffy Griffiths in the star heavyweight engagement of the winter at Miami.

This observation post holds no brief for Griffiths or for the Garden but it seems that if better ways are to be found to lower Sharkey's prestige, Buckley will find them.

The picture of Sharkey as a mankiller, knocking the heavyweights right and left, needs the artistic touch of a futurist. The Boston sailor knocked out a brace of light heavyweights in somewhat unusual fashion, Delaney and Loughran, but otherwise his record since being stopped by Jack Dempsey shows no great amount of damage administered to the rougher and tougher big fellows.

Sharkey could not knock Mike McTigue off his feet, at a time when the Irishman was almost old enough to be the sailor's father. The garrulous gob failed to dislodge Tom Heeney from his moorings or Johnny Risko, who won the decision. It may also be recalled that Sharkey had no relaxation last winter in the form of waiting for Young Stribling to get up off the floor of the ring at Miami Beach. At one stage of this fight it looked as though Sharkey himself might dust the resin with his trunks.

Perhaps Sharkey is critical of the Garden's persistency in picking opponents who decline to be bounced up and down.

The new fumble rule, which seems destined to stay in the football rules for 1930, nevertheless is far from satisfactory to many old-timers. Arthur M. Beale, a Harvard star in the 90's (playing four years at quarterback) focusses attention on these two points:

"(1) The present fumble rule is arbitrary and not logical. There is no reason why the defense may not run with a recovered fumble. The ball has always been capable of being carried by offense and defense. That is the original fundamental play in Rugby.

"Why rule that the offense may recover their own fumbles and rush again and at the same time prevent the defense from doing the same thing while the ball is alive? There is absolutely no reason except that the Rules Committee are hard put to it to do something. American Rugby and its troubles and defects are the result of treating symptoms.

"(2). The rule is bad from a sporting standpoint. In the blind mass game, fumbles are often caused by temporary nerve paralysis, loss of wind, or consciousness. It is not in the least a sporting proposition to take a ball away from an unconscious opponent, yet the slogan since 1880 has been 'tackle low and throw hard' with the purpose (among others) of producing a fumble."

Quite a few coaches, among them Howard Jones of Southern California, feel that the present fumble rule is inconsistent in allowing the offensive side to advance a fumbled ball while not giving the defensive side this privilege, which it formerly enjoyed. But the Rules Committee's contention is that the offensive side suffers enough penalty, in either case.

Bobbed Hair Proved to Have Been Viking "Fad"

It has been definitely proved: Bobbed hair was the fashion over a thousand years ago. It cannot be claimed that it conquered the entire world at that time, but we know absolutely that the ancient Vikings, the robbers and seafarers of old, knew the style. This astounding fact, together with many others of perhaps less interest but even greater scientific importance, has been established through the discovery near Tilsit, East Prussia, of a huge Viking burial place, dating from the Ninth, Tenth and Eleventh centuries. The finds are unusually rich. Each man's grave contains three or four iron swords, as many as a dozen lanceheads, bronze belt buckles, stirrups and snaffles. In the women's graves jewelry of all kinds was found, bronze bracelets, rings, necklaces, all beautifully wrought. A young woman with bobbed hair was found in one of these graves, with "zippers" used in place of buttons or pins to fasten garments.—Edgar Ansel in the Chicago Daily News.

Scores Made at Weekly Shoot

A renewed interest has been created in the weekly shoots of the Ulster County Gun Club by the beautiful prize presented to the club by William Davis Hawk, Inc.

Twelve members were out last Saturday and 1,000 targets were thrown. The new handicaps were posted and these will be revised every two months. It was found that Finch and Coles were tied for first point on the Hawk prize at the January 4th shoot. On the shoot off Coles won with 25 to Finch's 21.

F. W. Diehl put up a prize for the day, consisting of a set of drinking cups. Chaffee, Caunitz and Coles were tie in this event, Caunitz winning in the shoot off.

One of the best scores of the day was made by Frank Chaffee, Jr., shooting under a double handicap since he was using a 16 gauge gun and shooting from a sitting position. It is doubtful if many of the other shooters could have done as well under the same conditions.

In the Hawk event Fromer was high gun, giving him one point on the prize.

The scores:

Spinny's Book Gasco Quintet

The Gasco Five of Poughkeepsie will furnish the opposition for Spinny's Radio outfit next Thursday night in the regular weekly basketball game at Pythian Hall, Port Ewen.

The Bridge City players have been quite successful on the court this season and expect to show up in a successful manner against the Spinny Five, whose reputation they will seek to sink.

Spinnys will enter the contest with blood in their eyes. They believe that there is not a basketball team in Poughkeepsie, or in fact in all Dutchess county, that they cannot outscore, so according to all indications the game will be one well worth watching.

Earl Terwilliger, husky guard of the Spinny team, who has been out of the game for approximately two months on account of a broken arm, will be back in the Port Ewenes lineup Thursday. Terwilliger broke his arm playing football with the Yellow Jacket football team.

The prelude to the Spinny-Gasco tilt will be furnished by the Port Ewen Men's Club and the Young Judeans of this city. After the games the Moonlight Revelers will furnish music for dancing.

Game With Villa Nova.

Pullman, Wash., Jan. 14 (AP).—Washington State College has scheduled an intersectional football game with Villa Nova in the Philadelphia municipal stadium, November 29, 1930, it was announced here today.

Betty Engaged? That's What England Hears

London (AP).—Rumors of an impending engagement between Betty Nuthall, the 19-year-old British tennis player, and Dr. Patrick B. Spence, who has frequently been her partner on the courts, are becoming daily events.

They are widely circulated despite Betty's denial of "an official engagement."

Friends of the young couple firmly believe that there is at least an understanding, and that official news will be given out some time soon.

Dr. Spence came to England just after the war to study medicine.

He is prominent in British tennis circles and has won several victories in the mixed doubles championship at Wimbledon.

He recently accepted a medical appointment in Richmond, close to Miss Nuthall's home.

The ranks of feminine tennis players began opening up to marriage with the wedding in the fall of Eileen Bennett, who has announced that next month she will accompany her artist husband, Edmund Whittingstall, to Italy, where he plans to do some work.

She expects to return to the tennis courts in April, to get ready for the summer Wimbledon matches.

"THE HORSE AWAITS WITHOUT" HISSED LORD DUZZLEBURT

"If you ask me," replied Aletia coldly, "you seem to have brought the hoarse in with you. The hoarseness of your voice repels me, sir! If you wish me to go buggy-riding with you, you'd better change to OLD GOLDS.

"When my heart leaves me, it will go to the man who smokes this queen-leaf cigarette. There's not a throat-scratch in a trillion."

Baby Carriages First Used by Royal Families

Baby carriages did not make their appearance until the middle of the Nineteenth century, when, according to a historical sketch published by a carriage company, a man appeared on a street in New York and attracted a good deal of attention by pushing a baby carriage which he had designed and made. That man was Charles Burton, a lithographic artist who had come from England, and who returned to his home country with his baby carriage as soon as he discovered that he had hit upon a popular idea.

He made some more carriages in the parlor of a house near the Kensington palace and almost immediately received orders from nobility and royalty, including Queen Victoria, who bought three, Queen Isabella of Spain, who bought one, for her son, later Alphonso XII, and others. The royal houses quickly learned of the convenience of the baby carriage, and it reached the homes of the poor.—Detroit News.

Good Manners

I take it that the essence of good manners is the gift of putting people at their ease, not the chosen few people whom one likes, but all people. Yes, ease is the word that describes good manners. The great lady is at her ease with the gardener, the housemaid, the ragamuffin, the outcast, and she makes them all feel comfortable in her presence. And bad manners is the faculty of making every one uncomfortable, whether by being abruptly rude, or overwhelmingly gushing, too cordial or too lacking in cordiality, too contemptuous or too flattering. Too much of anything is bad manners. It destroys ease and makes people fidget. A manner that makes other people nervous is a bad manner, whether it be frankly unpleasant or too pleasant by far.—Mary Borden in Harper's Magazine.

After the Unattainable

"He's on a hunt for blue roses"—to say this of anybody is to indicate that the person referred to is on a quest for unattainable objects.

This is a rather colorful expression which comes down to us from the days when there was no such thing as a blue rose.

As a matter of fact, this was the case until quite recently. For it was only a few years ago that the climbing rose called "Veilchenblau"—violet blue—was introduced by the Germans.

Until the advent of this species of rose, the flower was cultivated only in the common varieties.—Kansas City Times.

President Hoover Absolved from Any Impropriety

Lobby Committee Finds Nothing Open to Censure in President's Relations to Those Connected With Sugar Interests.

Washington, Jan. 14 (AP).—President Hoover was absolved today by the Senate Lobby Investigation Committee of any impropriety in connection with negotiations with Cuban and American sugar interests charged against the Chief Executive in testimony before that group.

Reporting to the Senate, the committee asserted in addition that a "reprehensible" effort had been made to stir up Latin-American antagonism against the United States by those opposing an increased tariff on sugar.

It listed the total expenditures of those for and against such an increase at more than $400,000, with $175,000 to $200,000 spent by the former and $200,000 to $225,000 disbursed by the latter.

With reference to testimony that President Hoover had sought to bring about an agreement among the sugar interests on a sliding scale of sugar duties for incorporation in the pending tariff bill, the committee said that "in all this your committee finds no impropriety nor anything open to censure or criticism."

"It is quite likely," the report said, "that representatives of both the contending forces waited on the President to incline him favorably toward their views, respectively, and, the sliding scale solution having been proposed, he suggested that they get together in an effort to work out some plan, and in that connection informed them that he would have inquiry made into the practicability of the idea by experts of the departments.

"In any event," the report added, "it appears from the testimony that he did cause such inquiry to be made. In all this your committee finds no impropriety nor anything open to censure or criticism."

Referring to the employment of Edwin P. Shattuck, New York attorney, by H. C. Lakin, President of the Cuba Company, to advocate a low sugar duty the report said:

"It is undeniable that those securing his services labored under the belief that he was an intimate friend of the President of the United States, with whom he came into contact while serving with the Sugar Equalization Board. At least Lakin, in a voluminous correspondence, again and again asserted that he, Shattuck, sustained the closest relations to the president, and access to him at all times and was in frequent consultation with him on the sugar tariff.

"Shattuck denied that he had ever talked with the President about the tariff or that he ever told anyone he did," the report continued: "Anyway, that consideration led Lakin to advise his principals that Shattuck should be paid at least $75,000, though he modestly stated that, though nothing had been paid him, he expected something more than $25,000.

"Shattuck insisted throughout that he was employed solely as a lawyer, but the part of the work done by him falling within the scope of what is ordinarily understood to be legal services was negligible."

The report added that "a particularly reprehensible part of the program carried on by Lakin was an effort to stir up hostility to the United States in Latin-American countries upon the assumption that it, by its tariff policy, was mistreating Cuba."

"Offensive cartoons were prepared as well as what passed for editorial comment to accomplish this end," the committee said. "Clippings from Spanish-American papers indicated that the attempt had been to no small extent successful, and a translator was employed in their publicity office to read papers sought to be influenced and to transcribe what was said for the information of those instigating the movement.

"Lakin and Shattuck were in almost constant communication with the higher officials of the Cuban government touching the work in which they were engaged, the correspondence, as a whole, leaving the impression that the government had associated itself with them in their propaganda."

Referring to the employment of John H. Carroll, Washington attorney, by Lakin and Shattuck at a salary of $4,500 a month, the report said his income from a number of other concerns ran his annual salary to more than $150,000.

"It did not appear, after diligent questioning," the report said, "that Colonel Carroll had done anything or was in a situation to do anything in return for this liberal income." It said Carroll was about 75 years old, in feeble health, and "has not actually tried a lawsuit for many years, indeed since his youth."

The remainder of the report was a review of testimony before the committee by various representatives of sugar companies.

Concerning General Enoch Crowder, former American ambassador to Cuba, the report said:

"General E. H. Crowder labored in unison with Lakin and Shattuck, his employment apparently coming from Cuban sugar interests acting through President Machado, to whom he, as well as Lakin and Shattuck, reported."

Will Dispose of Lawrence Wilbur Case January 24

Due to the fact that county court will be in session Friday County Judge Joseph M. Fowler has adjourned the Lawrence Wilbur hearing in children's court until January 24, at which time there will probably be a final disposition of the matter. At present Lawrence Wilbur is with his aunt on Long Island, pending final disposition of the matter.

Several weeks ago Lawrence Wilbur, 15 years old, shot and killed his younger brother and sister at the family home near Willow. The two small children he claimed had been teasing him while he was at work about the house and he seized a Springfield rifle and, believing it was empty, pulled the trigger. One shot passed through the bodies of the two children as they were running through the door into an adjoining room. Lawrence was held on a charge of juvenile delinquency and given over to the custody of an aunt.

At the time of the shooting Mrs. Wilbur was a patient at the Kingston Hospital, where she had undergone an operation. She was not informed of the shooting until a short time ago when she was removed to her home.

What disposition will be made of the matter is not known but it is understood that the aunt, a sister of Mrs. Wilbur, desires to take Lawrence and have him reside with her and attend school, where he will have an opportunity to make good. The question which presents itself to the officials is whether this would not be a better disposition of the matter than sending the lad to some correctional institution.

Diogenes and his lantern

If Diogenes was a business man in Kingston and was looking for an honest man today, intead of going about the streets with a lighted lantern he would join the Merchants' Credit Association and get a select list of those who pay their bills as they agree.

"Some pay when due—
Many are over-due—
A few never do—
How do you do?"

The fact that "many are overdue" keeps our collection department busy. Our collection data automatically becomes part of the credit record of the individual against whom claims are entered and all members are advised that the claim is pending.

A good record at one store and a bad one at another is no longer possible because a complete picture of your credit habits is available to every merchant in Kingston.

The purpose of this advertisement, and others that will follow, is to acquaint the buying public with the existence and functioning of the Merchants' Credit Association, a five-year-old merchant-owned bureau, the business of which is to know and to dispense, through legitimate channels, information as to the credit habits of every buyer at retail in and about Kingston.

Our subscribers, there are over 300 of them, are the leading merchants of Kingston, and every branch of retail selling is represented. Any reputable business or profession extending credit to individuals and not allied with us, is invited to present credentials for membership. Our rates are proportionate to the volume of service rendered and are insignificant when measured in terms of protection.
